FOSS HEARING PUT OVER TO THURSDAY

Former-Governor Eugene N. Foss has retained a lawyer to handle his affairs in the Driscoll warrant applications. This came out today when Melvin M. Johnson came before Judge Burke in the city court to represent Foss at a hearing which was scheduled. The hearing was put over until next Thursday at 10 a. m.

Dennis D. Driscoll seeks a warrant for Foss' arrest on a charge of criminal libel. He complains that Foss libelled him by writing to District Attorney Pelletier that Driscoll suggested he would call off a strike at the Sturtevant Blower Works in 1912 if Foss, then Governor, would make Driscoll Prison Commissioner.

The continuance today was arranged at a conference between Judge Burke, Johnson and John P. Feeney, Driscoll's lawyer. Mr. Johnson wished more time for preparation, because he was called into the case only last night.

It was reported, after the conference, that the Foss side admitted the authenticity of a letter to Pelletier, so this point will not be disputed at the hearing.

EMPEROR SUPERSEDES GRAND DUKE NICHOLAS

By International News Service.

PARIS, Sept. 7.—Emperor Nicholas has taken over the command of the Russian armies. Whether this will result in the complete elimination of Grand Duke Nicholas is not yet known.

Apparently the Czar's action has been kept a close secret in Petrograd because the first intimation of this action came in a personal dispatch from the Russian ruler to President Poincare today.

The message from the Czar to the President follows:

"In placing myself today at the head of my valiant army, I take particular pleasure in addressing to you, Monsieur President, most sincere wishes for the grandeur of France and the victory of its glorious army."

Replying, President Poincare said:

"I know that in taking command Your Majesty intends to pursue energetically until the final victory the war forced upon the allied nations."

At the same time President Poincare expressed to the Czar warmest regards in the name of France.

PETROGRAD, Sept. 7.—A semi-official statement issued here today asserts that the Austro-German forces have been checked at practically every point on the battle front; that the Russian field armies are now fighting under favorable conditions and with courage unimpaired, and that the great Teutonic invasion appears to be on the verge of collapse.

Attention of the military experts is centred on the Riga region, where German artillery is trying to shatter the strong Russian defensive positions on the right bank of the Dvina River. Thus far the Russians have more than held their own, the War Office asserts, and have held back the Germans on the Niemen front, thus preventing the transfer of troops to the Dvina front.

South of the Niemen River the Germans have suffered tremendous losses in men and equipment. Recent heavy rains have turned the swamps into bogs in which soldiers and artillery have sunk.

The old frigate Portsmouth, stripped by the junkmen till only a hulk remained, was burned to the water's edge shortly after midnight today while thousands along the waterfront from Winthrop to South Boston watched the spectacular display.

The frigate was at anchor off Governors Island, a hundred yards from shore. The burning of the frigate was as beautiful a spectacle that some stayed till early this morning, when the vessel sank in shallow water.

There were moving picture cameras on the spot. Richard W. Sears of the Hearst-Selig News Service made a series of films of the burning hulk.

The hulk was fired by Fire Commissioner Grady, Sheriff Quinn and Commodore John F. Burke of the Thomas Butler Iron Company, which had bought the frigate for junk. Fires were set in bow and stern and amidships, and in a short time the whole length of the hull was blazing.

Practically all the hull above the waterline had burned to ashes before the vessel filled and sank.

LACK PROOF OF ATTACK ON LINER

WASHINGTON, Sept. 7.—Secretary of State Lansing today announced that he had received a long, detailed report from Consul Frost at Queenstown on the sinking of the Allan liner Hesperian. The Secretary said that all he could give out at this time was that the report was "not at all conclusive as to whether the vessel was torpedoed."

Secretary Lansing further said that the question of a gun being mounted on the Arabic may enter any discussion that may come up.

He said that when the United States originally declared that a gun up to the size of a six-inch cannon might be used by a merchant vessel for defensive purposes without making it an armed vessel the submarine had not entered into warfare. Under present conditions the questions of a merchant vessel carrying any size gun will have to be taken up anew, he said.

President Wilson will take no action in the case of the Hesperian for some time to come.

It was stated in official circles that the administration sees no present reason to question the good faith of Germany or to believe that her promise, "liners will not be sunk without warning," has been violated.

LOWER DEATH LIST.

Despatches from London this afternoon said that nine more passengers and sailors of the liner Hesperian had been accounted for after they had been given up for dead. Allan Line officials announced that they had accounted for all but seventeen persons. These were:

Passengers, 13.
Sailors, 4.

The State Department today made public the following cable from Ambassador Page at London on the sinking of the Hesperian:

"Hesperian sank at 6:41 this morning (Monday) near where torpedoed. No further loss of life. The Allan Line officials report no American passengers. Two American stewards, Francis J. Dallas of Buffalo and Barney McMillan of Grand Rapids, escaped uninjured. Both were below when torpedo struck. The total loss of life probably will be about 20.

"The Admiralty states that the Hesperian was sailing as an ordinary passenger liner and never had been in the government service since the war began.

NO TROOPS ABOARD.

"There were no troops aboard. Some wounded and invalided Canadian soldiers were travelling on individual tickets as passengers."

The State Department announced that no word had been received from Ambassador Page as to whether the Hesperian was warned.

Complete official reports are awaited from both Ambassador Page in London, and Ambassador Gerard at Berlin.

Ambassador Gerard will make inquiries in German official circles as to whether any submarine commander has reported on the Hesperian.

The United States will take no action until these reports are received.

It is believed here that unless a German submarine commander should report that he had attacked the Hesperian it will be impossible for the United States to act. According to all the information so far obtained no one on board the liner saw a submarine and the first knowledge of impending disaster came with the Postmaster "Billie" Murray was thirty-four years old today. His anniversary celebration began at 3 a. m. with the arrival of a ten-pound package of male.

10-Pound Male for Postmaster on His Birthday

Dr. "Dan" Hurley, the former Harvard football star, was in temporary charge at the Murray Summer home at Green Hill, Nantasket.

"It's a boy," said Dr. "Dan."

"It's a bear," whooped the postmaster joyously.

You see, it's his first-born. A ten-pound boy coming on Dad's birthday is more innovation than a postmaster usually permits without orders from Washington.

Mother and boy are doing well.

WARNED ON NIGHT OF DEATH RIDE

PROVIDENCE, Sept. 7.—The arrest of a material witness in connection with the murder of Dr. Charles Franklin Mohr is expected to result from a conference today between Chief Thomas J. Robbins of the Barrington police and Chief Inspector William F. O'Neil of the local detective bureau.

Chief Robbins called at the detective bureau shortly before 11 o'clock this morning. He and Inspector O'Neil were closeted for more than an hour.

Both men refused to discuss the rumored arrest, but it is known that detectives from Barrington and Providence are searching for the driver of a small automobile which was in the vicinity of the murder at the time of the tragedy.

MISS ORMSBY'S STATEMENT.

Miss Florence Ormsby, who has served as secretary to Dr. Mohr, went to police headquarters today and made a statement of what she knew of the circumstances leading up to the murder of the doctor a week ago.

Miss Ormsby told the police, and signed a statement to that effect, that on the day before the shooting a woman whose voice sounded like Mrs. Mohr's telephoned her and warned her not to go on the auto ride that night with the doctor, as she had been accustomed to do.

Chief Inspector O'Neil said afterward: "Mrs. Mohr told her not to take that ride Tuesday night."

It was on that ride that Dr. Mohr was killed and Miss Burger was seriously wounded.

Each Day There Are Fewer Available Suites

The Fall renting season has begun, and tenants are out in throngs inspecting apartments. They realize that the demand this year will be strong and that the supply won't be sufficient.

Scores of suite-seekers went "looking" on Saturday, Sunday and Labor Day. Although there were many available suites a few days ago, the number has been decreased. There are quite a few still left, but the number will be diminished each day.

If you want to move this Fall, and are looking around for a desirable apartment, turn now to the "Apartments to Let" columns of this paper. Don't put it off another moment. If you do, you will regret it. You can find what you want if you look now, but a short time hence it will be too late.

The American has published an Illustrated Addendum to its Monthly Renting Register. This Addendum contains the announcements of the progressive owners and Real Estate brokers of Greater Boston. murder—and of C. Manning Mohr, the doctor's son by his first wife, today went to Newport to appraise the property there and to search for a will.

There were reports today that a new witness in the case might be brought forward within a few days.

HAVE TWO LETTERS.

Two letters, one said to be in the handwriting of Mrs. Mohr and the other so worded that it may have been inspired by Mrs. Mohr, are in the hands of the Providence police.

Both letters, according to police reports, are addressed to Cecil Victor Brown, the young negro who has confessed to the murder of the doctor and who says that he was inspired to the murder by Mrs. Mohr. Both, it is said, read to the effect that Mrs. Mohr desired to see Brown immediately. Both are bloodstained and both are believed by the police to have been delivered by Mrs. Mohr's ten-year-old son, C. Franklin Mohr, Jr.

Mrs. Mohr declines to make any comment upon this new phase of the case.

WOMEN OFFER AID.

Absolutely confident that she will never face a jury on the charge of implicating the murder of her father, Mrs. Mohr is secluded in her home, except when wealth is calculated in millions that the most powerful legal talent in America is at her disposal.

Henry Spellman and Cecil Brown, the two men supposed to have done the shooting, have been identified as the two men who ran away from the scene of the murder ten minutes after the shooting took place. They laughed in the face of the two men who thus condemned them and jeeringly declared that "they should worry."

The two men identifying the negroes are Albert Deaucharme of Nayatt and Samuel Selley of Providence, who say that they were fishing in Echo Lake last Tuesday night and heard the shots about 9 o'clock. They say that they were within an eighth of a mile of the scene of the murder. They ran out into the road and there saw Spellman and Brown race through the crab oaks that fringe the roadway and make off.

IDENTIFIED POSITIVELY.

Selley was the more positive of the two. He said that his position was such that he did not have to turn his head to see the two negroes, sitting in the knowledge that at least six wealthy women of Rhode Island have assured him that she will not lack for financial aid in fighting for her life. It is declared that she has received three letters from the society colony in Newport, each of these letters bring her assurances from Deaucharme says that he saw the two accused negroes briefly and then only their profiles. But he, like Selley, told the chief of police of Barrington that he had no doubt about the identification despite the fact that since that night Spellman shaved off his little mustache and Brown wore different clothes.

Despite this new evidence against them, the three accused men today laughed at any suggestion of danger.

"Wait until our high-priced lawyers get busy!" they shouted. "Guess you all can't find better men in Providence than Adolf Gorman and John J. Fitzgerald, who are going to get us out of here soon."

Messrs. Fitzgerald and Gorman are listed among the best legal practitioners in New England. It is not known who retained them, but it is known that they are both of the habit of receiving large retainers.

Constable Wallace of Bristol County declared today that the full statement of the three negroes has not been made public, that it was of such a nature that it would prevent any attempt to switch aside the prosecution of the negroes and Mrs. Mohr; that there was not a chance for the three negroes to make a successful denial of their stories or to prove alibis.

William F. O'Neil, chief inspector of the Providence police department, held a conference with Chief Robbins of Barrington today. At this conference the police will decided definitely upon the testimony that they will produce when Mrs. Mohr comes up. A representative of the

Good for 1 One Vote

This Coupon will not be counted unless presented at the World's Series Contest Headquarters, No. 3 Winthrop Square, Boston, or mailed to that address on or before 5 o'clock p. m., Sept. 20, 1915.

HOW TO SEND VOTE COUPONS—At the end of the twelfth contest period (series "L"), collect all series of that series, then cut all your "Series 'L' No. 1" coupons together, tie or fasten them in some manner and attach a slip of paper showing the number of coupons in that package. Do the same with "Series 'L' No. 2" coupons, and so on to and including "Series 'L' No. 7," the last one of that series. Then wrap all in one bundle and write or stamp on the outside of this bundle your name and address and the number of consecutive sets said to be contained therein.

Attorney General of Rhode Island, Herbert W. Rice, was also present at the conference.

The invitation to a representative of the District Attorney is believed to mean that the town of Barrington will ask the State to take over the investigation and prosecution of the murder. The result of the conference will be put before the Town Council of Barrington at a special meeting tonight. Chief Robbins will tell the Councillors that either Barrington must appropriate at least $5,000 at once, or call on the State Law Department.

WOMAN IS COURT.

An echo of Tuesday night's tragedy will be heard in the Municipal Court tomorrow, when the petition of Mrs. Elizabeth Mohr, the doctor's widow, to be appointed administratrix of his valuable estate will be heard. It is understood that the son of Dr. Mohr by a former marriage will oppose the petition of Mrs. Mohr, on the ground that she is at liberty on $10,000 bail pending her appearance in court, September 15 on a charge of having plotted her husband's death.

In support of the theory that Spellman trailed the doctor in an automobile, it is pointed out that Brown's motorcycle, which is now in the possession of the Barrington police, has only one seat, and that if Spellman rode on it with Brown he must have ridden on the mudguard.

TRACING BROWN.

George McCandless, however, a crossingtender, and Joseph Butler, a gardener, both of whom live in the neighborhood of the murder, say that a motorcycle which showed no lights passed them on the crossing at the Nayatt station. McCandless is positive that the motorcycle was without headlights. Butler asserts that there was only one man on the motorcycle and he agrees with McCandless that it passed the Nayatt station at 9 o'clock, Tuesday evening. The third arrest took place about 8:45 Tuesday evening.

Brown was in Riverside at 9:55 Tuesday evening, Mr. and Mrs. William T. Jordan of No. 251 Bullock's Point avenue, and Mr. and Mrs. John Doherty of No. 29 Jefferson avenue saw and talked with Brown, who was looking for a negro family, C. B. Chin. His motorcycle at the time stood near Mr. Jordan's home and there was no sign of Spellman. So far as known, Spellman was not seen in Nayatt, Barrington or Riverside.

Mrs. Kemp Freed on Bonds of $2,000 in Auto Death Case

Mrs. Edytha M. Kemp of No. 3,699 Massachusetts avenue, Cambridge, appeared before the Lynn police court today, charged with manslaughter. She ran over and killed with her automobile Mrs. Annabelle Fairbanks, 45 years old, of No. 77 Pine street, Swampscott. Mrs. Kemp's case was continued until September 20 and she was released under bonds of $2,000.

The accident occurred yesterday in Monument Square, Swampscott. While Mrs. Fairbanks was boarding an electric car she was struck by Mrs. Kemp, who was taking a party of friends to Gloucester. Mrs. Fairbanks died later at the Lynn Hospital.

BRITISH CRUISER SUNK; U-27 IS LOST

BERLIN, Sept. 7 (by wireless)—The Admiralty announced today that the submarine U-27 had sunk a small British cruiser about August 15, but the U boat has not since returned to her base and is believed to have been lost.

English cruiser is officially reported to have been west of the Hebrides Islands, which lie off the Northwest coast of Scotland.

The U-27 belonged to the class which was constructed in 1912-13. Her displacement was 810 tons and she had 1,300 horsepower. The vessel was capable of making 17 knots an hour on the surface and 12 when submerged, and was equipped with three torpedo tubes.

The U-boat's crew is supposed to have numbered about 27 men.

The Admiralty statement follows:

"According to the report from a submarine, which met the U-27 at sea, she sank an old, small British cruiser west of the Hebrides about Aug. 19. The U-27 has not returned. It has been out at sea a long time and must be regarded as lost, with its crew."

FRANCO-GERMAN BIG GUN DUEL IS STILL RAGING

By International News Service.

PARIS, Sept. 7—The third week of the terrific France-German artillery duel opened last night with undiminished violence. Both the opposing armies have been overtaken by the pursuing Germans and forced into battle. The General Staff reported today that a great conflict is raging at Wolkowysk, forty-five miles southeast of Grodno.

The fighting is going on in the city of Wolkowysk, an important railway junction, and extends to a point twenty-five miles southwest of Slonim. It is through this region that the centre of the Russian army had to retreat after the abandonment of the Grodno-Brest Litovsk front.

JUDGE SLAIN BY 3 SHOTS FROM AMBUSH

now in charge of the search for the judge's murderer.

"I am satisfied that the man who killed my brother," said Horace Knowles, today, "is the same man who fired the shot at him on Saturday night, a month ago. I am sure that he is the man who lives not far from my brother's home.

"The police know this man as well as did my brother. Just as soon as we can perfect some of the details of evidence that are missing now, he will be arrested. I will spare neither money nor time in running down the murderer. The hunt will be followed to the very limit."

THREATS IN LETTERS.

To substantiate his suspicions against this neighbor, Horace Knowles turned over to the Johnston police a number of threatening letters received in the last couple of months. The identity of the author of these threats neither Horace Knowles not the Johnston police will disclose.

Judge Knowles had served as justice of the Eighth District Court, living in Cranston, Scituate and Johnston, since 1905, when he defeated Henry A. Palmer. He had served as clerk of that court for five years previous to his election as judge.

He was born in Hockingport, O., in 1845. His father, Horace Knowles, a retired steamboat captain and owner, is still living there. Judge Knowles was to have visited him at the end of the week.

In 1870 he went to Boston where he stayed for three years, studying in the office of Simon Brown. He then went to Providence, entering the office of C. C. Pierce, and being admitted to the Rhode Island bar in 1876. He had his office at first in Weybosset street, and since then in the Grosvenor building.

FOUGHT LIQUOR TRAFFIC.

Since his election as judge he has won a reputation for fearlessness and relentlessness in his dealings with law breakers, unusual in Rhode Island.

He was a bachelor, a big upstanding man physically and mentally, devoted to outdoor life, especially hunting and fishing.

Recently complaints of Summer residents in his district about the illegal sales of liquor and of lawlessness caused by this liquor aroused the judge to vigorous action. He spurred on the police and dealt out severe sentences or fines to those convicted in his court for liquor sales.

FOUND BY WOMAN.

Yesterday morning, for the first time alone since the "stray bullet" nearly killed him on his way home, he started off at ten minutes to 8 to walk to his car to Providence. He hardly left the house when Mrs. Wardwell heard a shriek and cried out:

"Now you .....! I've got you this time!"

She says that almost at the same time she heard three shots, one ran out, meeting William H. Watson, a neighbor and relative of hers. They found the Judge, dead. The first shot had pierced his right ear and lodged in his face. The other two had penetrated his back, lodging in the lungs.

Tracks in the dust showed where he had crawled several feet toward home, before finally collapsing.

Hub Shoe Men Are Arrested as Spies

The European representative and the European manager of the Rice-Hutchins Company have been arrested in Moscow by the Russian military authorities on suspicion of being spies, according to advices received by the company today.

The State Department received word of the predicament of the two men yesterday and immediately communicated with officials of the company. Meanwhile Ambassador Marye at Petrograd has been requested by Secretary of State Lansing to forward full particulars of the arrest and to procure the men's release, if possible.

The Rice-Hutchins Company is a Boston shoe concern and one of the largest in the world. It is the office of the company officials declined to give out the names of the arrested men, although it is supposed they belong in Boston.

GREAT BATTLE RAGES AT WOLKOWYSK, BERLIN GENERAL STAFF SAYS

detonation of the explosive which wrecked the forward engine room.

At the German embassy here it was stated that no word whatever had been received from Berlin regarding the Hesperian. The secretary in charge said that he did not know whether Ambassador von Bernstorff was coming to Washington, but up to the present he has made no appointment with Secretary Lansing.

Dispatches from London today said that Captain Main's official report on the sinking of the Allan liner Hesperian has been received by the British Admiralty. The report was kept secret, the Admiralty following its usual custom of withholding reports of such kind, but it is possible that part or all of the information given will be furnished to Ambassador Page if he requests it.

UNITED STATES INVESTIGATING.

Though Captain Main's report was not made public the British government censor permitted the transmission of a direct statement that the ship was torpedoed without warning, and this was the view generally accepted in British circles.

Lieutenant Lewis McBride, naval attache of the American embassy at London, sent by Ambassador Page to Queenstown to investigate the Hesperian case, today received word from that the stricken steamship had sunk before she could be brought to that port. Lieutenant McBride was under instructions to make a thorough inspection of the hull of the Hesperian to determine if possible if she were torpedoed and if the steamer carried a mounted rifle.

The lieutenant was instructed to remain in Queenstown, as he might be able to gather information of value to the State Department from survivors of the stricken ship, in addition to the affidavits secured by Consul Frost.

NO SUBMARINE SEEN.

The British press quotes a woman passenger of the Hesperian as stating that she saw a torpedo coming toward the ship, but as far as is known at present no one saw a submarine in the vicinity. In this respect the destruction of the Hesperian resembles that of the Arabic.

In other respects, however, the two incidents differ. The Arabic was sunk in broad daylight, while the Hesperian was smashed at night.

Officials generally believe that the destruction of the Hesperian will result in keeping many travelers off British transatlantic liners and driving them to the American ships. When it was announced that Germany had accepted the American principles as to submarine warfare with reference to liners scores made reservations with the British lines, but have since cancelled these bookings.

Today's dispatches quote the British press as retracting its warning that the German pledge to give limited warning is not to be relied on in its face value. The Evening Standard says:

"America may not wait long before another German torpedo jeopardizes and possibly extinguishes American life. If America indulged in sabre rattling in the best Prussian style, Germany would be made to conform to the minimum demands of the laws of humanity. For such a victory the world would touch its hat to American statesmanship."

Recovers Watch Stolen 4 Years Ago

Jeremiah Driscoll is as cheerful as any man in Roxbury today. He has just recovered a watch stolen from his home by a burglar four years ago. Driscoll lives on Walnut avenue, Roxbury. At the time his watch was stolen, ten dollars and a watch chain worth $25 also disappeared. Friday the Boston police notified Driscoll that the Brockton police had found his watch. Driscoll went to Brockton, was given the name and address of the man who had his watch, and recovered it. The man had bought it from another man on the street.

EXPECT DUMBA TO MAKE GOOD WITH LANSING

By International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 7.—Secretary Lansing must decide whether Dr. Constantin Dumba, the Austrian ambassador, violated diplomatic etchics in his efforts to cripple American munitions plants. President Wilson, it was stated at the White House today, has placed the case in his Secretary of State's hands with full authority to dispose of it.

Officials who are familiar with the entire situation say that they are convinced that no law was violated by any of the acts of the ambassador so far disclosed. The matter is one for diplomatic handling rather than for the courts, they say.

The chief question involved is that of dual citizenship. At the Austrian embassy it was stated that no public statement will be made until after Dumba has held his conference with Secretary Lansing.

The embassy officials insisted that they were satisfied that the entire matter easily could be explained by the Ambassador. The letters, which were laid before Washington correspondent Archibald by the British officials, merely show, the embassy claims, that the Ambassador was working for the best interest of his government. Complete copies of every letter sent by Archibald will be furnished Secretary Lansing, it was said.

It was reported in diplomatic circles today that copies had been sent through other sources are now in the hands of the British Foreign Office.

These letters, it is said, were taken from the baggage of Dr. Dumba recently when it was seized in the railway station at Lenox, Mass. They are said to reveal the details of the manner in which the Austrian embassy had been working to tie up American munition plants in such more complete terms than any of the letters taken from Archibald.

HAD RHEUMATISM FORTY YEARS

Unable to Bend Knees—Claims Var-ne-sis Removed Every Sign of Disease

"I have suffered from rheumatism since I was twenty-three years of age. I am now 75. Of course I thought there was no cure for me, as each year I grew worse, until finally it got so bad that I had to be assisted in rising from a chair. I was unable to bend my knees and could not open or close my hands, as the fingers were swollen from a chalky deposit." So said Mrs. S. E. Smith of 10 Verona St., Lynn, Mass.

"At times I was confined to my bed unable to lift my head from the pillow or turn over without assistance. My stomach as though every joint in my body was involved, and the pain through my hips was almost unendurable.

"So much people had been helped through Var-ne-sis that I decided to try it, although I had very little faith that it would benefit me very much. It seemed to relieve me and started to take it faithfully, and after several months I could see a decided change in my condition, and by continuing the treatment every sign and symptom left me, even the hard swelling on the finger joints disappeared. It seems almost incredible that a woman who has had the disease so long could recover. I consider it almost criminal, but will be glad to talk to any one about my condition or answer any letters pertaining to my ease."

Var-ne-sis is a vegetable remedy that has been remarkably successful in chronic cases of rheumatism, particularly in those cases that have been treated with the ordinary remedies month after month without results.

No rheumatic sufferer can afford to ignore Var-ne-sis. On exhibition at the Boston office, 140 Boylston st., are crutches, canes, photographs, whole chairs, etc., which are obtained from sufferers that have recovered through Var-ne-sis after being told that there was no help for them. $1,000 is offered if the testimonials are not genuine or that they have been purchased.

Send to W. A. Varney, Lynn, Mass., for the newspaper devoted to rheumatism; it should be in the hands of every sufferer. A registered physician may be consulted at the Boston office free of charge. This is not a sales office, but is maintained for the benefit of those taking Var-ne-sis, or seeking advice about rheumatism.

MRS. ARMOUR IS GEM THIEF VICTIM

CHICAGO, Sept. 7.—Mrs. J. Ogden Armour was held up and robbed by two armed burglars in her home at No. 3724 Michigan avenue. The men escaped with jewelry valued at $3,500 and $105 in currency.

Mrs. Armour was in the house with three maids. The burglars entered by climbing a porch and cutting through a screen door. They surprised Mrs. Armour in a bedroom on the second floor.

One of them held a revolver at her head while the other seized the jewelry and money which was in a purse on a dressing table. Threatening her with death if she made an outcry, they fled.

SUICIDE PACT BY BARONESS AND COUNT

By International News Service.

SORRENTO, Italy, Sept. 7.—Count Goffredo Gastani, a lieutenant of the Alpini, and Baroness Waldessen Reugers, only daughter of the Dutch Minister to the Quirinal, madly in love found it impossible to live apart and died together in a suicide pact. The count had a wife.

Their bodies were found early today in the Count's apartment, which was broken into at the request of his girl's mother, when the Baroness failed to return home last night. A bullet in the heart of each caused death. A note was found:

"It being impossible to live separately we decided to die together."

The count and baroness were much in each other's company and were among the best known people in Roman society. Friends of Gastani said that when the young nobleman found himself in love with the baroness and realized that because of his marriage he never could make her his wife he calmly sought death in the war.

He went to the front as soon as Italy entered the war and, according to his comrades, threw himself recklessly into every skirmish. Finally in August he succeeded in getting wounded in the Trentino and was invalided to Sorrento, where he occupied an apartment in the Hotel Tramontano.

During his convalescence Baroness Ruegers learned of his whereabouts and with her mother as chaperone came to Sorrento. The three were seen much together.

Last night the count and the girl disappeared. When the baroness did not return to her apartment her mother gave the alarm and the bodies were found. The count left two little girls.

Lime Medication in Tuberculosis

In the N. Y. Medical Record of December 5 1914, Dr. John North, of Toledo, says: "I have come to the conclusion that one of the most prominent causes of tuberculosis in this country is a deficient tuberculin reserve in the delivery of nutrition. Many do not eat food containing enough lime. In such cases we must resort to lime medication."

Any digestive should be given a fair trial in such cases, because one of its chief ingredients is calcium (lime), in such combination with other essential agents as to easily assimilated by the average person.

Where the use is combined with proper diet, fresh air and hygienic living conditions we believe it will prove the most powerful cure of tuberculosis.

It contains no opiates, narcotics or habit forming drugs, so is safe to try. Sold by all leading druggists.

Cowles Children "Doing Nicely" at the City Hospital

The Cowles children, Mary and Harriett, are "doing nicely" at the south, or contagious disease, department of Boston City Hospital.

Dr. Edwin H. Place, house physician of the south department, said today:

"The Cowles children are doing nicely. They have been fortunate so far, and no serious developments have set in. It is hard to say when they will be released, but I have also expressed no desire for us doctors to say anything to the newspapers, consequently I cannot say anything more."

The children were taken to the hospital by their father, Dr. Edward S. Cowles, Saturday afternoon, suffering with a slight attack of scarlet fever, as described by Dr. E. F. Hunt of the hospital, who received their cases. Dr. Cowles brought the children from West Medway despite the mother's vehement protests.

His stepmother said she kept him at home part of the day for fear he might get injured at one of the ball games in the city.

BIG ARTILLERY BATTLE RAGES ON GALLIPOLI

By the International News Service.

CONSTANTINOPLE, via Berlin, Sept. 7.—A great artillery duel is raging on Gallipoli peninsula, with warships participating, according to the Turkish War Office. It issued the following statement today:

"The enemy unsuccessfully bombarded with his land and ship batteries our positions before Sed-Ul-Bahr and Anafarta. Our fire caused fire to break out in the enemy's trenches and artillery positions at Anafarta."

Allies to Buy Independent of Morgan & Co.

The AMERICAN has received the following dispatch from the noted grain expert in Chicago, Joseph F. Pritchard:

Chicago, Sept. 7.—It has been said all along that J. P. Morgan & Company, would do all the business for the allied nations, with Great Britain as the fountain in making purchases of grain and other commodities.

But it now develops that many buyers have arrived at New York from the various nations abroad and that purchases will be made independent of J. P. Morgan & Company.

END GREENACRE SEASON WITH BIG SUCCESS

ELIOT, Me., Sept. 7.—The Greenacre season came to a close yesterday. The Greenacre conferences have ended, and the departures from that centre of activity have begun.

Saturday's program will long be remembered by the many who journeyed from distant cities to witness it or take part in it.

The program opened at 2 p. m. with all kinds of open-air sports, after which the Dramatic Club, of Eliot gave a performance in a huge tent.

Music-lovers flocked to hear Carl Baer's symphony orchestra, which at sunset rendered an open-air concert.

The Rotterham Light and Power Company contributed lights for the grounds for the evening's festivities, which opened at 8 p. m. with an exhibition of old English folk dances, under the direction of Miss Alice Martin of St. Louis. She was assisted by her pupils. This was a unique feature —against the background of Greenacre's natural environs.

A fancy dress ball at the Atrenium, interspersed with living pictures, closed one of the most successful seasons in Greenacre's history.

The Greenacre forum has been conducted this year on very different lines from anything in its previous years. It is no longer a stamping ground for the airing of individual ideas or personal cults. It limits itself, paradoxically speaking, to universal subjects.

Some of the subjects under discussion over the week-end were "Penal Servitude," by E. Stagg Whitin, assistant warden at Sing Sing; "The Teaching of Art to Children," by Miss Kallen of the Boston Art Museum; "Community Training as a Substitute for War," and "The Investigation of Reality."

Great things are planned for next year, among them the inauguration of a school for the study of comparative religions, to which many of those held as authority on the subject have offered their services during their vacations. The Boy Scouts are planning to meet here next year and the Esperantists plan to hold their convention at Greenacre next year.

ROXBURY MAN KILLS SELF AT WOMAN'S DOOR

The Boston police were notified today of the suicide of J. Boyd, a Roxbury widower with two children, who shot and killed himself at the door of Mrs. Ida Emery at Willimantic, Ct.

Boyd lives at No. 97 Parker Hill avenue, Roxbury. He was employed as janitor at the New England Baptist Hospital. He has two children, Clifford and Eva.

Boyd's housekeeper, Miss Brooks, is a sister of Mrs. Emery and Mrs. Emery recently visited her there. According to Willimantic dispatches, Boyd followed her to Willimantic, called during the day and then appeared again at the house late last night.

Mrs. Emery answered his knock. Boyd, without a word, shot and killed himself.

Mrs. Emery summoned a physician. The coroner was unable to come promptly and the body remained at the Emery apartment over night.

At the New England Baptist Hospital in Roxbury it was said that nothing was known of the reason for Boyd's act.

The boy went to the Revere cycle races last night and seemed in good spirits on his return. Efforts to revive him with a pulmotor failed.

Daughter Hears Godowski's Voice on Phone; Faints

NEW YORK, Sept. 7.—A mysterious call received at the Avon, N. J., home of Leopold Godowski, famous pianist who has been missing since last Wednesday, has led members of the family to believe the artist is safe and well.

Vanita, the pianist's twenty-one-year-old daughter, answered the call.

"This is papa—I have seen the papers," said the voice.

At this point the receiver dropped from the girl's hand and she fell in a faint. Emerson Whitborne, a business associate of the missing pianist who arrived here from St. Louis to conduct a search, picked up the receiver, continued the conversation. The man who said he was Godowski continued:

"I just wanted to let you know I am safe. I only saw the newspapers this afternoon and when I read how my family was worried I decided to let them hear. I'll be back soon as my work is finished."

SHARK SCARES BATHERS AT SALISBURY

SALISBURY, Sept. 7. — A shark raised havoc among the bathers at Salisbury Beach, when it swam close in shore and nearly caught a woman bather, who was swimming some distance from the shore.

The appearance of the shark drove every other bather from the water, and a posse was organized to capture it. The shark was finally caught at Black Rock and killed.

The big fish was first seen by Miss Anna McDonald of Lawrence, who was swimming some distance from shore. He was making for her and she turned in toward the sand, screaming. The shark kept after her until it was within a few feet of the shore, when it turned around and started to swim lengthwise of the big beach.

Other bathers manned a motor boat and life guards in a rowboat put out after the shark. They chased it for more than an hour, back and forth.

At last the fish headed toward Black Rock, with the boats after it. There it was driven into shallow water and killed. It measured more than eight feet in length.

How to find your sensible cigarette

The cigarette that you'll stick to when you find it must "make good" to you in three different ways.

It must delight your taste.

It must be cool and friendly to your throat and tongue.

It must leave you feeling as fit as a fiddle at the end of a hard-smoking day.

On the last two points we match Fatima against any cigarette in the world—it can't be beaten. You can prove that by these two tests.

But when it comes to taste, that's up to you. There's no telling, until you try them, whether Fatimas will just suit your taste or not.

They are the biggest selling cigarette, costing over 5c, in the world. If so many thousands of men prefer Fatima's taste, it's pretty sure that you will, too.

Why don't you try them?

If you do happen to like their famously good taste, remember that Fatimas are the most SENSIBLE cigarette you can buy.

Buy your trial package of Fatimas today.

Liggett & Myers Tobacco Co.

TWO TESTS FOR ANY CIGARETTE

The taste of the cigarette—according to a leading tobacco journal—is up to the smoker. But there are other qualities that you are going to find in your cigarette sooner or later. Here are a couple of tests that may help the average smoker to find what he wants in a cigarette:

Test number one—How do you feel after smoking all day?

If the tobacco in the cigarette includes a correct proportion of mild grades—and if that proportion is then blended with a correct proportion of the best grades—and if that blend is by some one of the two well-nigh perfect methods of so bringing out the qualities and so neutralizing any unpleasant qualities in each of the different types of tobaccos, you will be able to smoke practically whenever you feel like it—and the day without feeling any effect from it.

But with another cigarette in which the blend is one of the highest grade, you will find along toward evening, when the nicotine accumulates, and when all of the bacon are offered rewards for the sacrifice of their lives, that your throat is parched and that your tongue has taken on a leathery coating.

Test number two—How do you feel after smoking all day?

Inferior grades of tobacco or hidden strands of rank, oily leaf, you will feel a burning sensation on the tip of your tongue, or that sandpaper tickle in your throat.

Clip out these hints and try them on Fatima.

CUPID BUSY ON EVE OF SCHOOL OPENING

The day before Boston public schools open for the Fall term finds that twenty-five of the fair girl teachers have been studying with Professor Dan Cupid.

Some have been married since last June term.

Others are engaged and will be married ere long.

Twenty-five teachers graduating into romance at the Fall opening is a record for Boston. The number increases naturally for there are more and more teachers and pupils. There are 3,500 teachers on the public school staff.

Those who married have resigned, of course. Those engaged, who are about to wed soon, will resume teaching for the remaining time. But their resignations are expected.

The city schools will have 112,000 pupils on their desks when they open tomorrow. This is also a record-breaking number.

The only new school building is the High School of Commerce in the Fens way. This will accommodate 1800 pupils. The new school building in the West End which has not yet been named, will be completed later in the year.

The attendance at high school is increasing. More than 17,000 pupils are enrolled this year. The cost of maintaining these schools is $80 per pupil.

"The expenses for running them are increasing. They cost now three times as much as they did two decades ago," said Superintendent F. B. Dyer.

The Sarah J. Baker School, Roxbury, will be used for the overflow at the Dorchester High, where 2,500 are using entrance. The building accommodates 1,500.

The new courses in the high schools will be largely industrial and commercial.

The industrial school for boys, Roxbury, will not accommodate all the pupils assigned to it. There is need of a new building. The Franklin Union building will be used during the year for the overflow of this school.

Instructions in art to students who show special tendencies that way have been arranged at the School of the Arts, where thirty scholarships have been obtained for the public school pupils.

Guilty of Theft from His Mother

TERRIFIED BY A DREADFUL DREAM

George B. McKie of 1101 Washington St., Relates Story to His Friends

In a recent interview regarding the many testimonials published in the papers from Boston people relating the new system known as Plasmon Juice, the Plant Juice Man said:

"The proof of the pudding is in the eating. Actual statements from people who have used some remedy with success are more conclusive than all the scientific data in the world. That is why I am always anxious to make public voluntary statements from users of Plant Juice, because that is the quickest way to convince the American people of the wonderful properties of this truly remarkable remedy. I always insist on only using those from the same city in which they are published, so that the readers may have no difficulty in substantiating and verifying them. Following is the statement of Mr. George B. McKie, who lives at No. 1101 Washington street, and was born and reared in this city. He states:

"For the past six years I have been troubled with my stomach, indigestion and dyspepsia. I had periods of palpitation of the heart caused from gas pressing upon the heart, could not sleep at night I was so nervous, and would awake with a terrible sinking spell. My appetite was at times fickle and I was unable to eat any kinds of food. My stomach, I know of, but no benefit from any of them. A friend advised me to try the Plasmon Juice Plant Juice Tablets and I have been using a number of bottles and it has done me a world of good. I am feeling fine now, and am taking it and can recommend it to others."

The Plant Juice Man is at the Largest Drug Co.'s store, corner of Washington and Avon streets, where he is daily meeting the local public and interviewing and explaining the merits of this remedy.—Advertisement.

AMAZING STORY OF SINKING OF SUBMARINE

An amazing story of the destruction of a German submarine, which is believed to have been the destroyer of the Arabic, is contained in a letter received by Lowell relatives of Dr. Charles B. Banks, now in London.

Dr. Banks was a veterinary officer aboard the steamer Nicosian. He says in his letter that the Nicosian was attacked by a submarine, and that the submarine was sunk, while trying to sink the Nicosian, by a British patrol boat.

The British patrol boat, Dr. Banks says, flew an American flag—the Stars and Stripes—until she was within point blank range of the submarine. She then sent up a white flag, he says.

SAYS MEN WERE PUT TO DEATH.

Dr. Banks says also that Germans struggling in the water were shot, and that seven who were rescued were forthwith put to death by the English crew of the patrol boat.

Dr. Banks writes from London. The Nicosian, crippled by the submarine, was towed into port for repairs, he says.

He believes the submarine was the same that sank the Arabic, because it was cruising in the same locality and on the same day. His statement that the rescued members of the crew of the submarine were put to death was the most amazing passage in his letter.

The Arabic was sunk August 19. The submarine was sunk, according to the doctor's letter, on the same day, and in the same general locality.

The doctor's letter, so far as it refers to the submarine incident, is as follows:

SENT OUT S. O. S. CALLS.

"I left New Orleans on August 2 on the Nicosian. It was an uneventful trip until August 19, when at 2.30 p. m. we saw a German submarine coming to the surface about three miles ahead of us. She fired a blank which meant for us to hurry up and get out.

"We were at this time seventy miles off Queenstown. We heard three distinct calls for help with our wireless. They were the regulation S. O. S. This was before we saw the submarine. It then showed upon the starboard Dunaies, the Baron, the Erekine and the Arabic had all been sunk by her about this point and all about the same time.

"We sent out an S. O. S. as soon as the submarine ordered us out. Just before getting a lifeboat ready the merchant steamer coming straight for us. I saw she was a fast boat and was coming fast. I thought, of course, we would all be saved and that she was a rescue ship.

"The boat had the captain aboard and we were the last to leave the Nicosian. We were about 200 feet from our steamer when the submarine opened fire upon her with high explosive shells.

IN RANGE OF SHELLS.

"Four shots hit the water about us before any hit the ship. We were in the direct line of fire and some of the shots came as near us as they did the target.

"Twelve out of nineteen shots took effect above the water line and two below. By this time the steamer that had observed coming fast had arrived. She was an ordinary merchantman flying an American flag.

"I took a look at the submarine, as she had come very close to us and we all thought she was preparing to torpedo into our ship after they noticed that the shell fire had not sunk her.

"On looking back again, what was my surprise to see the American flag on the steamer which had arrived, and all go by the board. A shell was then sent up the mast, and what looked like a machine gun and rifle fire from her decks. The shots were aimed at the submarine's gunners on the aft of the ship.

"The crew of the submarine ran from the guns to the conning tower, which in reality was a British patrol boat with an English crew.

SUBMARINE DISABLED.

"Four twelve-pound shots were fired into the submarine, the fourth shot hitting a vital spot and blowing the craft a hundred feet in the air. All on board the sub was parts of the ship with arms and legs of the German flying everywhere.

"A few of the crew managed to jump into the water and they started to come to our ship. They swam alongside and climbed the ropes. Seven in all were finally aboard with us.

"A few shots from the guns on the patrol boat threw a hook into the water others who were attempting to get up the sides of the ship. The fiercest floundering in the water were shot and then the seven aboard the patrol boat were put to death.

"We were then towed into Queenstown, where we had to be repaired."

Evelyn Denies Being Glad at Divorce Suit

NEW YORK, Sept. 7.—Evelyn Nesbit Thaw, her son, Russell, and Jack Clifford, her dancing partner, have returned to New York after spending several months at Clifford's camp in the Adirondacks near the Canadian border.

Mrs. Thaw had little to say about the suit of Harry K. Thaw for divorce, but she was very angry because, she said, she had been misquoted concerning her views of the suit.

"The other day a newspaper quoted me as saying that I was glad Harry K. Thaw had sued for divorce, because I wanted to be through with Thaw and his tribe," she said. "That did me an injustice, because I did not say that, nor did I say anything that could have been construed as meaning that."

The Three Paths of Love

And How They May Lead to Disorder

By Ella Wheeler Wilcox

Copyright, 1915, by the Star Company.

TWO paths are open to the man who is in love with a married woman. One is to go away and leave her to the healing and obliterating process of time; the other to drag her through the mire of a divorce court and marry her. A third course—a dark by-path that always leads to moral and social destruction, remains—to become her lover and allow her name to be used lightly for the remainder of her mortal life.

The last is the coward's method. A man loves little, casts socially who is known as the lover of a married woman. Men admire him and only a few women avoid him. He unusually marries an innocent girl after he tires of his amour—as he is quite certain to do in the process of time.

A married woman who has a lover is always insanely jealous of him, and this becomes irksome and unbearable as months and years and the novelty of the situation wears off for the lover.

Before a man induces a wife to obtain one of those quick and easy divorces, so purchasable in our country today, both should try seriously to consider the matter, and they should carefully analyze their own feelings.

Many a man and woman mistake a fleeting infatuation, based on personal magnetism and intensified by obstacles, for a great love.

A woman may seem adorable to a man who is obliged to steal an hour with her, while she would irritate him in a thousand ways were he to have her constant association. A man may seem like the hero of a three-volume novel who is making ardent love sub rosa, but the same woman would find him inappropriable were he by her side through the daily vicissitudes of life.

There is a halo which surrounds the desperate and despairing lover, without which he can scarcely command becomes utterly commonplace in a woman's eyes.

A wife needs to be very sure that the lover for whom she sacrifices the respect of the public and the sincerity of her home life is not a creature of romantic imagination.

A man wants to be very sure that the woman whom he takes to flee from the bonds of marriage will not bore him in the verge of insanity after the honeymoon is over. For I would recommend to such a lover the thought that the very highest proof of love for a woman sometimes consists in giving her up and leaving her alone with her sorrow and her soul.

It may result in extreme suffering for both, yet to give wholly-itself and mentally often results in less suffering. It is not always safe to take it for granted that we cannot possess an object because we intensely long for it.

Such a man in the world is worshiped in the secret heart of a woman as little love can a god because he left her unmolested, who, for her, defied heaven and earth to obtain her, would have suffered the misery of seeing her disillusioned.

Inside the Desk

I was not married long before I discovered that my wife was blessed with the ordinary amount of woman's curiosity.

One day, when I was out, she embraced the opportunity to pick the lock of my desk. I do not know what she expected to find, but I think she must have been disappointed to discover that it was full of nothing but biscuits.

When I came home in the evening she said, "Dearest, what is the meaning of all these biscuits that I see in your desk today?"

I replied, "Well, we're married now, so I may as well tell you the truth. What I told you a bit (which was sometimes necessary) I made a mental note of it, and when I went home I would purchase a biscuit to speak. One biscuit per lie. If, during the day or during the evening, I told you half a dozen lies, I threw in half a dozen biscuits. So these biscuits simply represent the number of lies I have told you during our courtship."

She said, "Well, no wonder that I had only had your forethought, and but aside a little bit of cheese for every lie that I told you, we should have had enough biscuits and cheese to last us for life."

How to Make Straight Hair Curly

(Society Talk.)

To make straight hair nice and curly in one night, try merely applying plain liquid silmerine—that's one of the best beauty secrets that has come out in a long time. Some peculiar property of this harmless fluid causes the hair to dry in just the prettiest, most naturally curly manner imaginable. It is valuable as a dressing also, as it puts new life and lustre into dead-looking hair.

This means the singeing, drying curling iron can now be dispensed with forever! A few ounces of the liquid silmerine, which may be found at any druggist's, is all that is needed—so say those who have used it—and the transformation will afford a most unusual surprise to the worship.—Advertisement.

The New Hats from the Fall Openings in Paris

Republished by Special Arrangement with HARPER'S BAZAR, the Oldest and Greatest Woman's Magazine

These two models to the left are very chic. The first is a play on the familiar cocked hat, in dark blue, and the second is in Garibaldi red, in velvet, faille and ribbon.

Trees That Mock Old Age

Romance Connected With Patriarchs of Forests

By GARRETT P. SERVISS

THE individuality of trees is a very interesting subject. They are living beings, as much as animals are. It is an ancient notion that trees may possess a sort of self-consciousness comparable with that of the lower animals.

Perhaps neither is aware of itself; but, on the other hand, perhaps both are, in some dim way. There are persons who, seeing a great tree cut down and falling "with a groan," cannot avoid a certain shrinking sensation. It is the shuddering of feeling—superstition, if you will—that lends a high degree of interest to every ancient tree known to have witnessed famous historical scenes and events. Such trees seem like living witnesses of long past times.

A remarkable instance is the cypress of Cortez, still living, and carefully preserved and guarded, at Popotla, near the City of Mexico. A recent photograph of this tree, with its protective railing, is reproduced herewith. The legend, which is probably a true one, avers that Cortez sat and wept under this cypress, which was then already a large tree, although that was nearly 400 years ago, after his terrible defeat from Montezuma's capital, the famous noche triste, "night of sorrow," when most of his bravest followers were slain.

Read the account of that awful night in Prescott's "History of the Conquest of Mexico." It is one of the most dramatic descriptions ever written. The old cypress in its present state seems an image of the fourfold tragedy that it witnessed.

The race of the cypresses is a remarkable one, and has produced many remarkable individuals. They are celebrated for their longevity. Members of some of the species commonly attain a height of from 125 to 150 feet, and a diameter of trunk sometimes exceeding ten feet. Splendid specimens are found on the Pacific coast. They easily attain an age of several, or many, centuries, and the wood of some species is astonishingly durable.

The island of Tenerife, in the Canaries, possessed until the year 1868, when a storm destroyed it, what was called and generally believed to be, "the oldest tree in the world." According to the old system of Biblical chronology this "Dragon tree of Orotava" was ancient enough to have been planted by Adam himself, for botanical authorities were united in estimating its age at 6,000 years.

It belonged to a species peculiar to the Canary Islands, the Dracaena Draco. It was sixty feet in height and forty-eight feet in circumference at the base of the enormous twisted stem. It had been hollow for centuries. From a period of unknown high antiquity it had served as a place of worship for the Druids. In 1495, the year after Columbus first set out for America, Alonzo del Lugo, conquering Tenerife, turned the holy place which the Druids had established inside the hollow stem into a Christian chapel, and mass was celebrated there as long as the ruins of the tree lasted.

Humboldt and many other celebrated travelers in the days when there was something new for travelers to see and to tell, visited the great Dragon tree and noted its gradually advancing destruction by the tempests and by age. Professor Piazzi Smyth, one of the last of its visitors before its fall, described it as "no proper tree, with woody substance; it is merely a vegetable, an aspargus stalk, with a remarkable power of vitality and an equally eminent slowness of growth; and it is this last, indeed, not its size, which has gained it the credit of being the oldest tree in the world."

Rushing Things

The young man walked jauntily into the old man's library.

"Sir," he said, and he stammered, "I happened to meet your daughter an—er—at a reception this afternoon." I want to marry her next Friday at 2 o'clock. She's willing. We want you to come to the ceremony."

The old man turned to the appointment book on the table in front of him.

"Which daughter?" he asked.

"Oh—er—Miss Ethel."

"Right" said the old man. "But make it half-past 12, and I'll attend the wedding. I have an engagement at the other hour."

So it was ordered. This is a hustling age in which we live.

Why We Quarreled

No. 10—This Husband's Untidiness Troubles His Wife

By Virginia Terhune Van de Water

Copyright, 1915, by Star Company

MY husband and I have quarrelled because of his apparent indifference as to how his home and he himself looks.

In the first place, Paul smokes, and no smoker is thoroughly tidy. Then he is not as careful about his personal cleanliness as I think a gentleman should be.

To be sure, I have not had much experience with men, as my father died when I was a mere child, and I had no brothers. So it was hard for me to become accustomed to the odor of cigars, pipes and cigarettes. But for the sake of my husband, I tried to do this.

I am naturally very neat, and it makes me acutely uncomfortable to see things in disorder.

Soon after our marriage we moved to the suburbs and bought a new cottage. All our furniture was pretty and dainty. Paul seemed as proud of our belongings as I was. So it was a distinct disappointment to me to note how little pains he took to keep things immaculate.

First of all, he bought a dog. Now I am fond of animals, and the thought of having a dog on guard when I was at home alone was comfortable. But I supposed that the creature would be kept out of doors.

"When will you get his kennel?" I asked on the day of Rover's arrival.

THE ULTIMATUM

"He won't need a kennel," my husband informed me. "He will spend most of his time on the veranda."

"But in muddy weather, think how dirty he will get the place," I ventured.

"In stormy weather he can come into the house," my husband remarked. "He is too valuable a dog to be left out at night in all weathers."

I looked at the thoroughbred English setter, and reflected that he was certainly an ornament to any household. So I offered no further protest at the time.

It was Autumn, and with the first cold, rainy evening Rover greeted for admittance on our new front door. Paul smiled as he saw the marks of the dog's nails on the polished wood.

"Come in, you rascal!" he called, opening the door. "You're as wet as a drowned rat."

He spoke the truth. The dog had been running through the woods and far from our cottage. He now made straight for the open fire, in front of which he proceeded to shake himself vigorously, the drops from his shaggy hair flying in all directions.

"Oh, Paul!" I exclaimed. "This is too much! Just look at my pretty furniture."

But Paul only laughed.

That is his way.

That is also the way that he took my comments on his smoking and many other untidy habits. When he was a boy his mother must have let him do just as he pleased. He was her only son. Perhaps that accounts for his carelessness.

A SMALL THING

It seems a small thing to quarrel about, doesn't it? Yet, after a while, I found conditions almost unbearable. Our living room was finished in white enamel paint. Our rugs and hangings were in an exquisite shade of dull blue. It was an ideal room. At least, that is the way it looked before I was married.

Later, when my husband's dog was not lying on my one white fur rug in front of the fire, my husband's muddy boots were drying there. He liked to tramp in all weathers, and when he came in, he would throw his damp mackintosh on one chair, his wet hat on another, and, stretching himself out on his couch, with his head on the delicate-colored cushions, proceed to light his cigar, and smoke, dropping the ashes about promiscuously. Then, when dinner was announced, he would go into the dining-room and sit down at the table in his rough clothes, his hair unbrushed, his hands unwashed.

I stood this for one year. At the beginning of our second Winter in the country, I had a long talk with Paul. I told him how unhappy his ways made me and begged him to be more careful. He seemed impressed by the talk, which I made as gentle and conciliatory as I could, and promised to try to comply with my wishes.

With my own money I had the rugs cleaned, the sofa-cushions recovered, the floors "done over," and the whole house put in perfect order.

DISMAY

Then I went away for a few days to visit a friend in the city. I returned on Sunday afternoon instead of waiting until Monday afternoon, as I had planned. All the way home I was thinking how different our little home would be now that Paul was going to be more careful. It was a bitter cold day, and, as I rode to the village stage from the railroad station, I pictured my husband's happy surprise at my arrival. I also fancied how cozy and inviting the cottage would look.

But when I entered softly, I stopped short in dismay. My husband's muddy footprints and the dog's equally muddy tracks were everywhere. Paul wore no collar, and he had evidently not been shaved since my departure. He had had two bottles of beer brought into the living-room that morning, and the "empties" and a glass still stood there. The place smelt of stale beer, cigar butts and wet dog's hide.

My husband laughed at my exclamation of disappointment. He always laughs at such things. Then he kissed me. The bristles on his chin scraped my face, his soiled linen and spotted clothes offended my taste to the breaking point, and I pushed him from me with both hands.

"Don't touch me!" I commanded. "What is the matter?" he asked.

"In a few strong words I told him.

"And now," I said, "the time has come when you are either to alter your habits, get rid of your dog or get rid of me!"

I know many women will condemn me, for my husband was fond of me, was a good provider, and a respected member of society.

But to one brought up as I was, unCleanliness in person and habits is hateful to a degree that some actual sins would be.

How to Misunderstand Women

Another Fictionless Fable for the Fair

By ANN LISLE

THERE was once a man who called himself a student of life. And the most interesting topic he could find was in investigation and classification of women.

This man knew women of all sorts—old, young; good, bad; beautiful, ugly; clever and stupid. He was so busy knowing the sex that he had very little time to know either love or himself. But he meant to make his investigations count in terms of a series of great novels in which the misunderstood feminine sex should for once be clearly explained, championed and classified.

And then the man met a girl who was supremely good and serenely unattainable. He decided that she represented the ultimate good in woman, the angelic for which all mankind vainly groans. He took up his mind that some day, if he could win her, this woman must be his wife. In the meantime he had work to do—he must learn to know the sex of which this woman was so shining an example.

And so across his path there came a flower of evil, a more exotic creature than he had ever known—a greater and a worse than Carmen. And the man made up his mind that when he had studied her nature he would turn to the winning of his angel.

THE LURE

But the wicked Carmen person was very, very beautiful, and the man did not find investigating her at all unpleasant. He lingered and did the job thoroughly and with gusto. Of course, what concerned him was her mental processes, but in studying them he found it not at all unpleasant to investigate, too, the sweetness of her lips. His soul was quite untouched by the affair, but his eyes were glad and his mind, he felt sure, was enriched.

In due time he returned to his angel with the idea of courting her and making her his wife. But the angel slammed the door of her heart in his face after giving him quite clearly to understand that she wouldn't have the rejected suitor, the cast-off, would-be lover of the Carmen person.

"But I wasn't in love with Carmen at all," he exclaimed. "I found her a remarkably interesting type to investigate. We'll use her in the great book about women we are going to write together. That will be a wonderful book. With you to help me I shall do marvelous things for your sex."

THE RETORT

The angel sneered. "My dear man, I know something about the world. No man could take a purely intellectual interest in such a lovely creature as Carmen. Don't tell me. I wouldn't be soiled by having a man in my life who had been loved by her. Your administration lowers me in my own eyes."

And she drew her immaculate angel draperies away from contact with such as he.

The man gazed at her in mounting horror. Her unjust accusation staggered him. He had never supposed that his angel could think so basely or judge so cruelly. He hesitated between suicide and marrying Carmen. But he compromised by—using the angel as the lady villainess in one of his books.

MORAL: Even for her who evil thinketh, it is sometimes impossible to do anything but good.

In Our Very Wonderful World

EVERY volcanic outburst—and such, remember, are constantly happening in some part of other of the world—drives enormous quantities of fine dust into the upper atmosphere, dust so fine that it floats for months or years before it settles to the earth's surface. It is around this dust that the water vapor drawn up by the heat of the sun condenses and so forms the clouds, without which this world and we would be in a very bad way.

Without volcanic action we should have no mountains. The earth would be a flat plain, covered entirely with water. All irregularities upon the earth's surface are due to volcanic action ancient or recent. The Andes are an example of modern volcanic energy; Dartmoor, in England, with its stumpy-like tors, is the debris of a very ancient volcanic range.

See, too, what a quantity of valuable minerals we owe to the energies of volcanoes. Gunpowder would probably never have been invented but for volcanoes, for sulphur is a volcanic product, the chief source of supply being Sicily, which yields some 300,000 tons yearly.

Pumice stone is another volcanic formation of considerable importance in many industries. Diamonds are only found in the necks of extinct volcanoes, and nearly all our precious stones also owe their existence to the intense heat of eruptions.

A curious method of curing snake bites is in vogue in India.

Two victims bitten by the deadly cobra were seated on the ground and there held, while from a height of sixteen feet gallons and gallons of hot water were poured on their heads. Presently the victims "took a new lease of life," and are now well.

The explanation to this "cure" probably is that the snake, so often happens, bites its victims, but injected no poison into them. Thus the men were merely terrified and continued to be frightful until the pain caused by the douche of hot water gave them something else to think about.

Over eighty separate methods have been found for the utilization of the cocoanut, with its fibre covering and its products. Every year about eight thousand million nuts are produced. Of this quantity 50 per cent. are consumed as food; 20 per cent. are transformed into oil, and only about 30 per cent. find their way to the European and American markets. Cocoanut oil is used on a colossal scale for the manufacture of nut butter, margarine, soap, candles and lard, and also as an illuminant and a lubricant. The coir or fibre sheath which envelops the hard shell of the nut is used for rope, cordage and cables.

Walnuts appear to have a curious connection with war. Most of the oldest trees in England were originally planted, not for the sake of the fruit, but because the wood makes the best gun stocks, being light, strong and not easily warped. The largest walnut grove in England is at Kempston, near Bedford. It contained at first three hundred and sixty-five trees, one for each day of the year, which were planted about a century ago by the then owner of the farm, who remarked that wars would never cease and the timber would always be wanted for gun stocks.

After Vacation Peel Your Discolored Skin

Women returning from the seaside with browned, reddened or freckled complexions will be glad to learn that by taking up the mercolized wax treatment, Weather-beaten skin can be had to come off, for no amount of "beautifying" will ever make the skin so pretty to look at. The surest, safest, easiest way to shed the dappled cuticle is with the treatment suggested. Put an ounce of mercolized wax, obtainable at any drug store, in enough to make any discolored or spotted complexion clear, white and satiny soft. Its action is so gentle no injury is caused and the face shows no trace of its use.

Remember that ordinary cheap and dirt cut wrinkle-makers that no-daily use of mercolized wax will smooth away all lines, crows feet, sallowness, muddiness, blotches, blackheads or pimples, whether on the face, neck, hands, arms or body. Used as a face bath this is a splendid wrinkle remover and preventive.—Advertisement.

WOMAN WOULD NOT GIVE UP

Though Sick and Suffering; at Last Found Help in Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Richmond, Va.—"When I started taking Lydia E Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I was in a most rundown state of health, had internal troubles, and was extremely nervous and prostrated that if I had not been urged to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I would have been in my grave. As it was I had hardly strength at times to be on my feet in the house, and had to lay by a great deal. I could not sleep at night and of course felt very bad in the morning, and had no appetite.

"After taking the second bottle I noticed that the headache was not so bad, so I kept on and my nerves were stronger. I continued its use until it made a new woman of me, and now I can hardly realize that I am able to do so much as I do. Whenever I know any woman in need of a good medicine I gladly tell her Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound."—MRS FRANK CLARK, 3146 N. Tulip St., Richmond, Va.

Women Have Been Telling Women for forty years how Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has restored their health when suffering with female ills. This accounts for the enormous demand for it from coast to coast. If you are troubled with any ailment peculiar to women why don't you try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound? It is made from roots and herbs and contains no harmful drugs or narcotics.

CRAIG PLAYERS REAPPEAR IN COMMON CLAY

"Common Clay," the play which had a record run here last season, was presented by the Craig Players at the Castle Square yesterday, at two performances. This remarkable drama, written by Cleves Kinkead, a student in Professor Baker's playwright class at Harvard, continues, as it always will, to draw capacity houses.

Then too, John Craig with his talented company never presented it better. Yesterday might be well termed Old Favorites' Day. There were many members of the company, all well known to the Square patrons, who last year were not in the production but whose faces are seen this week.

John Craig, Mary Young, and in fact the entire cast received a most cordial reception at both performances.

The three-act drama is one of deep human interest. There isn't a dull moment in the whole play. In his piece Mr. Kinkead shows us three distinct lives. First, a queer, rather simple old woman. Second, a man who has reached the pinnacle of fame and wealth by unfair means. Third, a girl, greatly handicaped, a victim of circumstances.

Each character portrays a story of hardships and of struggles through life, finally finding a new way to look at life and the hardships with more confidence and courage.

John Craig, as Judge Samuel Filson, Mary Young, as Penelope Gail, a famous actress, Theodore Friebus as Richard Fullerton, and William F. Carleton, as Hugh Fullerton, played the leads in their accustomed polished manner.

Donald Meek, as Richard Fullerton, Al Roberts as W. F. Yates, an attorney, and Betty Barnhouse, as Mrs. Richard Fullerton, pleased.

FASHION SHOW PLEASES AT KEITH'S

Fashions galore for another week at Keith's Theatre. The New York Fashion Show of 1915, which fascinated feminine patrons and had even a compelling charm for men last week, is enjoying an extended engagement—just as beautiful and as interesting, but with new things to admire. There are fifty gowns, frocks, hats and other fashion products, different from last week. The personal charms of Peggy Hopkins and the winsome maidens who assist her in displaying the gowns and hats are not the least attraction among the whole.

This fashion display is comprehensive, beginning with negligee, through morning, sporting, afternoon and evening suits and gowns, even unto robe de nuit for retiring.

Lydia Barry, the comedienne, charms with her song and comedy, especially her take-offs of certain types of song and character.

"The Broken Mirror," by the Schwarz Company, is ingenious in idea and is worked out in masterly manner. A valet who has broken a cheval glass manages to deceive his master by laughable impersonation.

Frankie Heath and George Perry sing and chatter and have rich comedy. Bankoff and Girlie do unusually graceful dances, classic, Russian and cakewalk. Harry Lester Mason relates a janitor's woes and reels off ridiculous by funny verse about a eugenic marriage.

"Spooks" is a mysterious comedy skit, whimsical and including a catchy song, "I Haven't Got the Do, Re, Mi," by Walter Hutton.

"Charles," the clown seal is billed as having a "human brain," but somehumans never will be bright enough to do all Charles does. Burns and Lemo do descriptive dances well and the pictures show current events.

Plays That Remain in Boston Theatres

SHUBERT THEATRE.

"Experience," the big morality play has caught Boston. It played to capacity all last week and registered one of the biggest hits in years.

PARK SQUARE THEATRE.

"Twin Beds," the clever farce by Margaret Mayo, enters its second week at the Park Square with every indication of a long and successful run.

WILBUR THEATRE.

"Nobody Home," the brisk and entertaining musical musical comedy, headed by Adele Rowland and Lawrence Grossmith, is now in its third big week at Boston's coziest playhouse.

Modern Theatre.

"The Two Orphans" is the feature card of an exceptionally attractive bill for this week at the Modern Theatre. The production was witnessed by large holiday crowds yesterday, who showed their keen appreciation by frequent and generous applause.

The piece is staged by the famous William Fox Film Studio, who spared no expense in making the production one of the best and most realistic photo-plays yet produced. The story of the play is unquestionably familiar to all playgoers, who have thrilled and enjoyed it in its original stage version.

In its screen version the tense interest is admirably sustained and the story is clearly told from beginning to end. Theda Bara, a popular screen actress, won an universal recognition by her remarkable portrayal of the vampire woman in "A Fool There Was," appears as Henrietta.

Park Theatre.

Mary Pickford tops the big bill at the Park Theatre this week. The queen of the film is seen in "Esmeralda, released by the Famous Players. This is a picturization of the famous romance by Frances Hodgson Burnett and it offers Miss Pickford one of the most attractive parts in which she has ever been seen.

"Esmeralda" is only part of the big double show. Jack Barrymore, one of the cleverest of the male stars of the film and the legitimate, is seen in a sparkling comedy called "The Incorrigible Dukane," in which the comedian is said to have the big part of his career.

When you add to these two fine pictures the Paramount Travel Views of South America, the Pathe News, Mixline Bates, soprano, and the Park Orchestra, you have a wonderfully pleasing entertainment.

Boston Theatre.

"When a Woman Loves," the tense five-act romantic drama, with Emmy Wehlen, the charming Viennese actress and recent star of "Marriage a la Carte," in the principal role, heads the program at the Boston Theatre this week.

In "When a Woman Loves" she plays the part of Ruth King, a waitress in a cheap restaurant, who loses her position and becomes an inmate of a gambling house in Nevada, a decoy for victims, only to have her eyes opened through the love of a good man.

The second episode of "Neal of the Navy," shown the last three days of the week only, is another big feature, and Mary Pickford, the queen of the movies, in a romance, is still another attraction.

'WHITE FEATHER' SCORES HIT AT PLYMOUTH

By FREDERICK JOHNS.

"The White Feather," a three-act play by Lechmere Worral and J. E. Harold Terry, opened the Plymouth for the season with two performances yesterday. It is presented by William A. Brady.

It deals with the early period of the present war when England was sending an expeditionary army to the continent, and the tight little island was just reeking with German spies. No hamlet too small to be full of them.

A beautiful young lady enters early in the first act distributing white feathers to youthful Britishers who hadn't enlisted. She gave one to Christopher Brent who seemed at first an amazingly stupid sort of idiot but soon proved to be our hero, and a very important secret service official.

He was but on the trail of German spies, who intended to run off one German submarines the hour and the place from which the expeditionary force would start. He soon discovered a wireless outfit behind an innocent appearing fireplace.

The proprietress of the hotel, her son, employed in the British admiralty, an old German spinster and a Dutch servant-girl were the chief suspects at the end of the next two acts. Brent is assisted by a mysterious lady named Jirx, Leo, and handicapped by a loving but foolish sweetheart and her grand old ass of a father. In the end he wins and turns the spies over to the police.

The play is exciting, and increases in interest up to the big climax of the last act. There is a bit too much shooting around the door and keyhole and the play should end with the arrest of the head spy, instead of with a comedy climax. But it is good entertainment and would be better if the company were better balanced.

Albert Brown is cynical as the secret service agent. His fawning and his melodrama are eminently satisfactory. Arthur Elliott as a thick skulled M. P., was also very amusing, and Eric Mason gave a clean, fine and sympathy-winning picture of the patriotic German. Louise Muldener made a faithful German frau. John Burkell did good work as the third spy and Ruth Chester was excellent as the fourth.

Florence Auer seemed inclined to overact her role of assistant English secret service agent, while Margaret Pendegast was a boisterous ingenue.

Scollay Square Olympia.

A big bill of vaudeville and feature photo-plays greeted the large holiday crowds that attended the Scollay Square Olympia yesterday. The following were on the bill: The Lauhlins in a novelty burlesque musical offering; Jack Symonds, "The Man of Ease," in songs and talk; Mark Linder and Company, in a two-act comedy dramatic protean sketch, "The Wagner Revue of Revues, a splendid juvenile offering; Finley and Burke, in a clever singing and talking act; Camp's Fire Girls in a classy miniature musical comedy.

The photo-plays included the great four-reel masterpiece, "Infatuation," Lloyd Osborne's novel, of the same title, featuring Margarita Fisher and Henry Pollard; Hearst Weekly, showing the Governors at the naval review, also the State troops in parade during Governors' Week; "The Power of Prayer" in two reels and several other recent comic and dramatic releases pleased.

'SONG OF SONGS' GOES BIG AT TREMONT

By FREDERICK JOHNS.

Those who saw Edward Sheldon's "Song of Songs" yesterday at the Tremont Theatre were privileged to see great acting.

The part of Lily Kardos in "The Song of Songs" is worthy to rank with Tosca, Carmen and Camille as an opportunity for the world's greatest actresses. It may be that there are finer actresses in America than Irene Fenwick, but none of them has ever had an equal opportunity to prove it, and whatever be your opinion of the play from an ethical, moral and technical standpoint; you must admit when you have seen it that it makes Miss Fenwick great, and she makes it great.

"The Song of Songs" is not a healthy play. Neither was Camille. It is the story of a young shop girl who always meant well, but through force of circumstances committed one grave error after another. You see her as an untutored child, as a half educated wife of an old man, and the accomplished queen of the New York equivalent of the demimonde.

Sheldon took the play from Sudermann's novel "The Song of Songs." He changed the location to America, which is responsible for several situations that do not adapt themselves readily to American environment. Yet he writes so cunningly, so delicately, that he builds his scenes so powerfully, that you feel ready to excuse him for not depicting a less pernicious subject.

The first act scene is the supper party where Lily is made intoxicated so that she may reveal her misdeeds, and disgust the earnest youth who wishes to marry her. It is a wicked scene, from beginning to end, and its climax is brutal and debasing. And yet what a chance for the sort of acting that the modern, tame-cat comedy has rendered scarce.

It is in this scene that Miss Fenwick reveals amazing powers for one so young and inexperienced, and it is in the last act that she reaches a pitch of emotion that recalls to your mind without resembling the last act of Camille.

And Miss Fenwick is not the only great actor in this company. Cyril Keightley, as the first and last of her lovers displays a conception, ease, a graceful command of every situation, a naturalness and a power that is worthy of the greatest respect.

And there is Thomas A. Wise, our old friend of "The Gentleman from Mississippi." He personified John Mason in the part of the Uncle who found Lily's drunkenness a scene in his nephew of his danger. Mr. Wise plays with all the unctuousness, the drollery and the determination that the very ruthless role demands.

Al Woods has taken no chances with poor actors in this play. Every part is finely handled. Martha Kirkland, as Senator Calkins, Lily's husband, Joseph Mann, Lewis Cox and the remainder of the cast are all excellent.

Franklin Park Theatre.

The capacity of the Franklin Park Theatre was taxed at both matinee and evening performances yesterday and the best show of the season was presented.

It consisted of the following acts and feature pictures: Cliff Bailey, the comedy barrel jumper; Lawrence and Edwards in the skit, "The Pension Office"; Kenny and Hollis, two college boys, sustained the fine reputation they have made; Ford's Dancing Revue was a big dancing act that took in fine shape. The Paramount feature, Pauline Fredericks, in "Sold"; the Pathe Weekly, and the three-reel serial "Who Pays?" were shown on the screen.

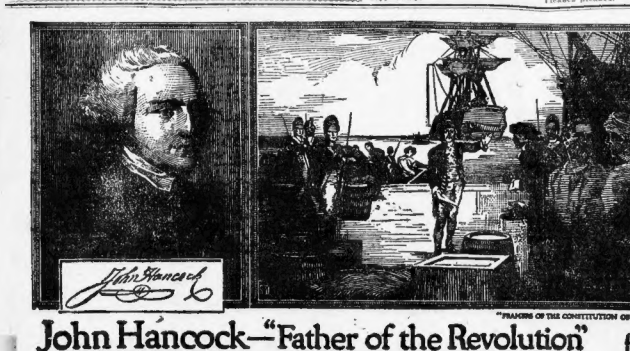
"WE'RE SERVING HUMANITY" SAY SISTERS OF ST. MARY

"When We Tell Others of the Value of Father John's Medicine As a Tonic and Body Builder and for Colds."

The Sisters of St. Mary, of Marksome, Que., Canada, in a recent letter, say: "We will willingly permit you to make use of our testimonial in favor of Father John's Medicine. We consider that by doing so we are rendering a great service to humanity at large, but especially to people of limited means, who are desirous of having a quick, safe and comparatively inexpensive restorer of health. They have all this in Father John's Medicine. For several years and with best results we have been using your medicine in our community. We have already recommended it to several young ladies, teachers, who say that from the very first bottle they used they have felt a mental relief, and soon run down.—Advertisement.



"FRAMERS OF THE CONSTITUTION OF THE U.S.A." NO. 6

John Hancock—"Father of the Revolution"

UPON the Declaration of Independence his name may be read without spectacles. His signature was the first subscribed to the world's most famous State document. In the most realistic sense John Hancock pledged his life and his fortune to the cause of the Revolution. He was one of the richest men in the colonies, holding investments in banks, breweries, stores, hotels, and also owning a fleet of vessels. The seizure of one of these precipitated the Boston massacre. In Revolutionary days and until his death he was a popular idol. When it was proposed to bombard Boston, though it would have resulted in greater personal loss to him than to any other property owner, he begged that no regard be paid to him because of his financial interests. While Hancock did not sign the Constitution of the United States, he used his great influence in its behalf, which awakened the gratitude of Washington. "He was prepossessing in manner, and passionately fond of the elegant pleasures of life, of dancing, music, concerts, routs, assemblies, card parties, rich wines, social dinners and festivities." Until the end of his life the people of Massachusetts delighted to honor him. In the stirring events preceding the Revolution he was one of the most active and influential members of the Sons of Liberty. To this tireless worker for American Independence Liberty was the very breath of life. He would have frowned upon any legislation which would restrict the natural rights of man, and would have voted NO to prohibition enactments. It was upon the tenets of our National Spoken Word that Anheuser-Busch 58 years ago founded their great institution. To-day throughout the length and breadth of the Free By public their honest brews are famed for quality, purity, mildness and exquisite flavor. Their brand BUDWEISER has daily grown in popularity until 7500 people are daily required to meet the public demand. Its sales exceed any other beer by millions of bottles."

KENNEDY AGAIN IN "ROMANCE OF ELAINE"

DEL MAR turned and ran down hill, Jameson, Woodward and the soldiers in full pursuit, and dived into the sea.

In the distance he had seen the periscope of the submarine. On the side of the hill the old hermit, surveying the scene, smiled. The man who had sought to learn the secret of a wireless torpedo invented by the missing Craig Kennedy, should learn its secrets and its full power.

The torpedo flung from the airboat crashed into the submarine. The destroying boat severed and sank. From a metal float that survived the wreckage the victorious ones drew Del Mar's last message.

"Tell my Emperor I failed only because Craig Kennedy was against me."

And the old hermit at the door of the hut was leaning over the frightened Elaine. As he tried to lift her to a standing position his scraggy beard was disarranged and a smooth, determined young face showed beneath.

"Craig," cried the girl with a great sob.

"Yes," he answered, folding her in his arms as though he would never let her go. "My work on the Del Mar case is finished."

GOOD NEWS FOR THE DEAF

If you are losing your hearing—if you are troubled with buzzing and ringing in the ears—if you find that your nostrils are clogged—if you hawk and spit in the morning—if you have given up hopes of finding relief, just go to Riker-Jaynes, or any other drug store, and purchase one ounce of Fluid Enserol. Mix this with one pint of warm water. Put two drops in the affected ear every night. Put one tablespoonful in a fourth of a glass of warm water and gargle throat and snuff up nose night and morning. Keep this up for a few weeks and test your hearing and you will be pleased to note the improvement. You will also, no doubt, discover that your catarrh has disappeared and head noises gone.

BAY STATE ROAD ASKS RIGHT TO BOOST FARE

The Bay State Street Railway Company today filed an application for permission to increase its fare from five to six cents on all lines.

The application, filed with the Public Service Commission, includes a provision that nine tickets will be sold for fifty cents. These tickets will be good in Lowell, Lawrence, Haverhill, Salem, Lynn, Saugus, Revere, Chelsea, Malden, Everett, Melrose, Swampscott, Boston, Quincy, Brockton and Fall River.

New fare zones are to be introduced in some localities, and the transfer privilege is to be modified. All reduced fare tickets except those for school children are to be withdrawn.

The proposed changes go into effect—providing the commission approves—November 1.

It is designed to eliminate excessively long hauls on one fare. Two cents is to be charged for transfers in some districts.

Tells How Last Torpedo Missed

This is the story of an American lad, a sailor on board a Norwegian ship sunk off the Irish coast by the German submarine U-39. Picked up by the submarine and landed in Heligoland, he remained eleven days on board while the undersea boat raked the Irish ocean and sent to the bottom eleven merchant ships and came near being sunk herself.

HENRY REUTERDAHL.

By CARL FRANK LIST.

Copyright, 1915, International News Service.

PART III.

To me all hands on the German submarine U-39 appeared to be a kindly lot. They shared everything with me. And when a life was lost there was sorrow.

I saw nothing but courtesy, brusque and hasty, of course, shown to the crews of the vessels destroyed.

They made more fuss over the St. Bernard dog which was killed during the sinking of the French schooner Hirondelle than if a million dollar steamer had gone down. And this right before the eyes of two French torpedo boats coming up in chase.

Every command was executed instantly, and the discipline was top notch. The smallness of the boat established a certain clumminess between officers and men unknown to a big ship. I guess they thought they were likely all to die together!

It was now a full week since I had climbed over the shiny side of the U-39, dropped below through a hatch, found myself on board the German submarine, and stared wild-eyed about its inside, which looked to me like a subway car full of alarm-bang machinery, swimming in electric light and tended to by goops in leather suits. I found myself getting used to the life.

THE ANGLO-CALIFORNIAN.

One day I heard the captain ask the torpedo room through the tube if all was clear.

The answer came, "Ja, alles fertig"—all ready.

"LOS!"—Fire. As the torpedo left the tube I can hear the swish of the airblast and feel the jerk of the discharge. All silent, on tip-toe, we are waiting to hear the echo of the explosion from the torpedo striking. But there was no sound. In the periscope they saw the tracks of the torpedo abaft the fleeting steamer.

MISSED!—And it was our last torpedo.

But when the huge Anglo-Californian, full of war material, cavalry horses and Russian reservists hove in sight, we went for her without a single torpedo in our tubes and with but a handful of shells for the deck gun. That meant surface work only. She heeded no warning shots.

It was about 7 A. M. Sunday, July 4. We fired into her rudder, hoping to disable her, but she kept on steering for the Irish coast. The U-39 was running —hammer, hammer went the engines, doing almost trial-trip speed. Rushing with increasing revolutions, the spray falls from all sides on the boat, the pointers at the gun are drenched and their oilskins look varnished in the sunlight. The gun is eating up our last shells.

But it is a wily commander on the Anglo-Californian's bridge, working in spirals to escape. So our captain orders the gun to aim at the bridge and sweep the deck underneath. And the lookouts through their glasses note that the commander and her mate fallen and that some one was steering the ship flat on his stomach, grabbing the spokes of the wheel.

A HOT ACTION.

Meanwhile boats are being lowered, but it is a mystery how they are kept from being swamped and the people spilled, as the Anglo-Californian never showed once, but kept running full speed in circles.

We are ordered to count the few remaining shells and to aim accurately. We riddle the bridge and funnels with a furious fire, but the last round of ammunition is gone. There is no surrender, the Anglo-Californian is still zigzagging.

As a last resort the Maxim is brought on deck and clamped on top the conning tower. It begins to spit its fire of rifle bullets by the beltful. Less than a couple of hundred yards away we pick off the Anglo-Californian's crew whenever a head showed itself around the boat davits. Our fire is returned, rifle shots are dropping on deck and spattering our conning tower. The scratches on the armor show where they hit.

But it was of no avail. She had tried for help over the wireless, but had been hard at it for over two hours, and assistance is coming to our prey. A gray patrol yacht turned up behind her bow, followed by a swarm of destroyers, all summoned by the Anglo-Californian's wireless.

Like lightning we scattered pellmell for the conning tower hatch, and we were unshipping the Maxim and handing rifles below just as a shell whizzed over our heads and struck the water within fifteen feet.

We literally "beat it," dropped below the surface like a rock. We could hear the sound of the propellers of the pursuers over our head and could imagine their cursing, for we stayed under the water for an hour.

Oh, for the torpedo we missed with yesterday! We have got to go home, we are as harmless as a kitten—can't even defend ourselves. That California man was "some captain." He ought to have the Iron Cross said the crew. (We learned afterward in Heligoland that he and nine men had fallen and several had been wounded.)

HAVING NO TORPEDOES THE U-39 RETURNS.

Our tour of duty was twenty-one days, the maximum of endurance for submarines of our class. And U-39 had left Heligoland the 20th of June, and should, according to schedule, stay out on her station on the Atlantic bordering the Irish Sea, until July 3, allowing six days for the return to Heligoland.

But we had no alternative—our ammunition was exhausted, so home we raced a day sooner.

Same alertness, same watch keeping as before. When smoke showed up on the horizon we made ready to drop under, giving patrol boats and trawlers the slip. Around the west coast of Ireland, skirting Scotland, we stood on a tangent down to the Danish coast.

We had no ammunition left for the deck gun, and no more torpedoes, so we couldn't tackle anything big.

North of Scotland, homeward bound, we sighted a submarine. But before we had a chance she had made her number with a rocket, though it was in the daytime, just as the crew was to be sent inside previous to submergence.

It was the famous U-20, the conqueror of the Lusitania. Our colors were hoisted, all hands cranked their necks. The captain sent for Erich, the music master of the gang, and his accordion. And as we closed in on each other, Erich mounts the conning tower, crosses his legs and begins a tune of greeting. Meanwhile the officers megaphoned for the news.

And what do you think Erich played? Not the national anthem, but an old Norwegian waltz, with all hands beating time to the tune until the U-20 passed on—a relief on our station off Cape Clear.

Close to the island of Syit we reported ourselves by wireless. Raising the wireless was a matter of a minute. The two masts were hinged, one swung forward, the other aft; both masts lay flat along the lower deck, clamped down, and a stay, secured forward, pulls up the aerial taut and the whole is ready.

THE LUSITANIA SAVED BY AMERICAN FLAG.

It was while lying on the bottom between the island of Syit and Heligoland that I heard this story, which has been in my head ever since.

You remember reading in the papers that once the Lusitania returned to England under the American flag. As she steamed up the Irish Sea for St. George's Channel a German U-boat had her cold. Nothing saved the Lusitania but the American colors floating astern. The submarine recognized the liner, but did not understand the meaning of the American flag, so did not dare to fire a torpedo, though the ship was within easy range.

We had to rest on the bottom a few hours so as to make Heligoland exactly at daylight, only 10. No submarine is allowed to enter the harbor at night.

Never have I seen a dirtier crowd of men than ours. When we came alongside the submarine dock the spick and span sailors and soldiers greeted us accordingly. We were "sea-raubers," pirates, barbarians, and the name fitted our looks.

There was not a civilian resident on the island save a few dock laborers, and two women nurses were the lone representatives of their sex. Nothing but sailors, a few soldiers and artillerists who were waiting for somebody to shoot at. After spending the night on a hulk serving as floating barracks, I took my little kit on board the destroyer S-17 for passage to Wilhelmshaven, to where the U-39 would finally come for overhaul.

ANOTHER BIT OF NEWS.

As the flotilla was leaving the harbor—about twelve of their newest and largest destroyers—a bluejacket pointed out the sister ship S-15 as having sunk the British battle cruiser Tiger in the last big North Sea battle. He also said that the Audacious was not sunk by a mine, but by a U boat. But that I had heard from many on board the U-39, and it may be untrue. Certainly my companions on the U-39 did not speak of their own knowledge.

Right before Wilhelmshaven, about seven miles out, lay the great German battle fleet. We passed right through—all hands had shifted into blue uniforms.

I saw no destroyers patrolling, but a lot of trawlers outside, cruising up and down. Some of the dreadnoughts had their torpedo nets down and at anchor. Some were moving slowly.

There they lay—gray and ugly—under full steam. The Westfallen, Oldenburg, Konig, the whole dreadnought fleet, as if waiting for something. The Seydlitz they singled out to me—I read the name in the stern. She was supposed to have been sunk by the British.

In Wilhelmshaven, we, the shipwrecked, were taken ashore by a petty officer and I was haled before all kinds of officials to find out if I was eligible for military duty.

And right here ends my adventure with the German navy. The rest of my story matters only because it deals with the kindness of the American Ambassador at Berlin, Mr. Gerard, and our Consuls, who sent me home in fine Bristol fashion.

My sleeping in a charitable institution in Hamburg and carrying the hod in Leipzig were simply the incidentals of being dead broke, for I had landed on German soil without a penny, without even one full suit of clothes or a hat.

APPENDIX.

Fourteen ships in all were sunk by the U-39 during this cruise. Eleven went down while List was aboard the submarine:

Cambus Kenneth, full rigged ship, Norwegian.
Fiery Cross, bark, Norwegian.
Katlia, bark, Norwegian.
Ellesmere, steamer, British.
Light Body, steamer, British.
Gadsby, steamer, British.
Caucasian, steamer, British.
Lomax, steamer, British.
Boudognat, steamer, Belgian.
Hirondelle, schooner, French.

And one British trawler and three other steamers of the same nationality.

Coming Events in Boston Show Houses

"She's in Again," the lively three-act farce by Thomas J. Grey, which had a long run at the Gaiety Theatre, New York, last Spring, has been selected to open the Hollis Street Theatre on September 13. It will be presented by a strong company, headed by Ada Lewis, who has always been popular here since her days with Edward Harrigan.

REAL BEAUTY SHOW AT GAIETY

"It's the biggest thing that ever came down the line." The program says: "Fifty-one people and ten big scenes, and an uproarious upheaval of lingerie and laughter, all of which is good description of the Merry Rounders at the Gaiety Theatre.

Abe Reynolds, easily the peer of Hebrew characterization comedians, heads the company and his famous "Jacob Rosenbaum" character is known wherever burlesque is shown. If anything Reynolds is funnier this year than ever before.

A close second for honors is George F. Hayes, whose "rube" character has revolutionized this type of comedian on the burlesque stage.

In support of the principal comedians is Jack McGowan. Of the female principals, two, May Latham and June La-Vier are new for the first time at this theatre. Both were recruited from the musical comedy ranks and are "finds" of Mr. Spiegel, the producer. Miss Zella Clayton, another principal, was well received yesterday.

Loew's Globe Theatre.

A large holiday crowd witnessed a splendid performance yesterday. Among the vaudeville acts was "Raymond Payne & Inez Nesbit," with a company of players who presented one of the best farces seen here this season. This sketch was entitled "Getting Her Rights," which was full of many comedy situations. Another splendid act was "Golding and Keating," in a singing and talking travesty which delighted immensely.

Others were the "Melody Four" in an up-to-date novelty, "James Brown" offered an original monologue, "Netty Wilson," that charming singing comedian, also pleased. "The Three Bordows" appeared in their sensational acrobatic stunts. "The Berlin Serenaders" offered their latest song hits. Among the feature photoplays was the "Diamond from the Sky."

Waldron's Casino.

"Broadway Girls" opened at Waldron's yesterday afternoon.

In the organization of this attraction Jean Bedini, who is one of the most reliable producers on the Columbia circuit, has a book with a plot, which is full of good, clean comedy situations. To get people who were capable to play it was no easy matter.

After much deliberation the following were engaged: Helen Lorrain, ingenue; Ella Gardner, character comedienne; Harry Jackson, Hebrew comedian; Al Herman, juvenile; Charley Macy, English comedian; Dancing Skellys, dancers from the Pacific Coast, who can really dance; Davis and Stagord, blackface and eccentric comedians and, as an added attraction Mlle. Minni Amto and Aurelio Coccia, in "The Apple of Paris," a French drama without words, and introducing "The Dance of the Rose."

'GIRL FROM UTAH' FULL OF STARS AT COLONIAL

Julia Sanderson is a most pleasing person. Donald Brian is a most graceful dancer. Joe Cawthorne is always funny. And now the three are back again for a brief engagement at the Colonial with "The Girl from Utah," a really delightful musical show.

It is of the "Made in England" kind—stylish frocks, smooth, graceful songs and dances and a general quiet air of tea and cakes. Bond street and drawing rooms, and strong on the wind instruments—violins and soft pedal on the drums.

Julia Sanderson, in some beautiful new shimmery gowns, sings again the eminently whistleable song—with Brian—"Same Sort of Girl" and one of the simple Irish air songs in which she excels—"Molly, Dear, It's You I'm After."

Twenty-six musical numbers in some show and Miss Sanderson takes a part in the best of them all.

Joe Cawthorne makes fun as he has always done by mangling up the English language, having all kinds of troubles with his "r"s and taking the audience into his entire confidence. His song, "Florrie the Flapper," went big.

Donald Brian danced himself into the big show in the "The Merry Widow" and the dance fans have ever since hailed his graceful dancing with especial enthusiasm.

Brian's dancing of the polka and his waltz "Fershan," with Clate Sewell, made an especially big hit. They are the last word in a graceful exhibition of the modern dances.

The three stars are on the stage most of the time and it is their combined talents that make a big success out of the show.

Majestic Theatre.

With exactly the same superb production which has broken all theatrical records in Boston at the Tremont, the "Birth of a Nation" is now entrenched at the Majestic, where it has due itself in for a run of several weeks. Griffith's "Birth of a Nation" has paralyzed a continent. Nothing so wonderful as its war scene, the death of Lincoln, Sherman's March to the Sea and the Ride of the Klans has ever been seen upon the film. It is no wonder that people go again and again to witness its miracles.

At the Majestic you will find the same big orchestra, the same elaborate setting and the same complete environment which prevailed at the Tremont, and judging by the holiday audiences the big picture is in for another run.

Loew's St. James.

There were big crowds yesterday at the performances at Loew's Back Bay house. A number of new vaudeville features were shown. Among those to appear was the splendid farce playlet in an exceptionally good cast entitled, "The Real Mr. Cox." The added features was "Stanley Burns and Hall," who presented an up-to-date skit of melody and songs. "De Lisle and Dupont," also pleased the large house with their splendid offerings. "Lorey and Allen," two juvenile entertainers, also pleased.

RED SOX AFTER FINAL BATTLE

By RIGHT FIELD.

The Red Sox are out today to grab the final game with "Hilly" Donovan's saucy Yankees and have what revenge is possible for the double humiliation of the holiday.

The Sox were surprised and sore over seeing what they had counted on as two mere "games won" gradually disappear into the wrong side of the ledger, just at a time when they wanted to build up that lead of theirs in anticipation of the coming visits of the White Sox and Tigers.

As a consequence the Carrigans will try to make life miserable for the peaky Highlanders today.

"Smiling Bill" Donovan, Prexy Lannin's former hired man, having sent his two prize scholars against the Carrigans will today confidently send "Cy" Pich, whom he has been grooming since Friday, into the box. "Cy" had just as soon pitch his head off if he thought he could provoke the Sox by so doing.

Manager Donovan also has "Bob" Shawkey, one of the numerous "Connie" Mack alumni now scattered over our broad land, to call on.

Tall Ernie Shore seems to be the Red Sox entry, he having had nothing to do since last Friday, when he made such easy work of the Athletics that Vean Gregg was sent in for the last three cantos to test out his arm some more. Gregg himself is the outside choice for today's assignment.

The Red Sox went into morning practice with a vim today, for they will have to get right down to work after they entertain the Athletics on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday. On Saturday the White Sox arrive and they will be right after the little old ball game, even if it does come on Lannin Day, when the "fans" are to honor the Red Sox president.

The Red Sox twirling work of Joe Wood, who kicked in with thirteen wins and four losses between May 8 and August 15, more than a little There might have been hopes for the second clash with the Yankees if he could have gone in, even to relieve "Babe" Ruth.

"Smoky Joe," however, may not be seen on the mound for at least two weeks. His arm, which didn't seem to be so badly off when he came back to Boston from Cleveland, has been playing tricks again of late.

Wood has only been dented for twenty-six runs in 142⅓ innings and the Red Sox could stand all that kind of hurling there is available just now.

PAT RAGAN OUT TO HALT GIANTS

NEW YORK, Sept. 7.—Pat Ragan is carded to bring the Braves back to their feet again today.

Yesterday, right here on the Polo Grounds, the Giants of Johnny McGraw, now no longer the tiniest bit peeved, came to life long enough to administer two all-fired lovely lacings to the Stallings entrant, and while they won't do our Giants one lick of good, so far as the title is concerned, they served as the medium to give two gay gatherings of the faithful the first touch of high life they have enjoyed in many a day.

Mr. Pat Moran's Phillies missed a glorious chance to get a copper-riveted hold on first place in the race by taking two flops along with the Braves, and now the Braves are not an inch farther out of first place than they were before they hit up their Labor Day frolicking. Yes, over in Brooklyn the Robins, fresh back bound from being annihilated in Boston, rallied and defeated the Phillies coming and going in the two contests.

The two New York defeats cost the Braves second place in the race. It also means that they have two less battles to fight, and, as they have the big margin of four games to make up, this doesn't help their cause any.

In the forenoon frolic the Braves got Tom Hughes off with a two-run finish. The tallies bobbed up in the fifth canto. Right away the Giants came back with one counter. In the sixth the McGrawites went a length to the good and just for good measure they added two more runs on to their total in the eighth, cinching an already won game.

At the end it was 3 to 2 in favor of the Giants, which pleased some nineteenths of the crowd immensely, though there were quite a number of Boston sympathizers in the "house" and they died hard. Stallings and his crowd made a lot of noise up to the end, but they never had a chance to side-step defeat.

Smith led off in the fifth inning with a single and Paskville followed suit. On a bobble by Stroud the two runners moved up. Gowdy sent out a long, high spiral and Smith tallied, while Maranville came in on Hughes' single.

MRS. VANDERBECK TOPS HER FIELD

CHICAGO, Sept. 7.—Mrs. Charles H. Vanderbeck, Philadelphia Cricket Club, the East's women's golf champion, was the star of the field of 132 contestants in the qualifying round in the United States Golf Association championship tournament on the links of the Onwentsia Club. Her card read 41—44—85 for the eighteen holes. Mrs. Vanderbeck's score is the best so far made by a woman on the reconstructed course, which now measures 6,453 yards long.

Miss Lillian Hyde, South Shore Club, Long Island, N. Y., Metropolitan and Florida champion, barely missed a put on the last green for a tie with Mrs. Vanderbeck, finishing 42—45-86.

The next best score was 45—46—91, returned by Miss Alexa Sterling of Atlanta, Ga., the seventeen-year-old Southern champion.

Mrs. Harry D. Hammond of Indianapolis, runner-up in the recent Western championship, and Miss Elaine V. Rosenthal of Chicago, Western champion and runner-up in the National at Nassau, last year, had an off day and took 101 and 102 strokes, respectively.

An international flavor was lent to the play by the entry of Mrs. W. A. Gavin of Shirley Park, England. She turned in a card of 96.

Mrs. J. V. Hurd of Pittsburgh, who as Miss Dorothy Campbell won the English championship and the United States championship in 1909 and 1910, also finished far up in the list with 96, tying with Laurie Kaiser, Chicago champion, and Eleanore Chandler of Huntingdon Valley Club, Philadelphia.

The veteran player, Mrs. R. H. Barlow of Philadelphia, and Marion Hollins of Westbrook, L. I., played steadily for 92 each.

Yesterday, right here on the Polo Grounds, the Giants of Johnny McGraw, now no longer the tiniest bit peeved, came to life long enough to administer two all-fired lovely lacings to the Stallings entrant, and while they won't do our Giants one lick of good, so far as the title is concerned, they served as the medium to give two gay gatherings of the faithful the first touch of high life they have enjoyed in many a day.

Mr. Pat Moran's Phillies missed a glorious chance to get a copper-riveted hold on first place in the race by taking two flops along with the Braves, and now the Braves are not an inch farther out of first place than they were before they hit up their Labor Day frolicking. Yes, over in Brooklyn the Robins, fresh back bound from being annihilated in Boston, rallied and defeated the Phillies coming and going in the two contests.

The two New York defeats cost the Braves second place in the race. It also means that they have two less battles to fight, and, as they have the big margin of four games to make up, this doesn't help their cause any.

In the forenoon frolic the Braves got Tom Hughes off with a two-run finish. The tallies bobbed up in the fifth canto. Right away the Giants came back with one counter. In the sixth the McGrawites went a length to the good and just for good measure they added two more runs on to their total in the eighth, cinching an already won game.

At the end it was 3 to 2 in favor of the Giants, which pleased some nineteenths of the crowd immensely, though there were quite a number of Boston sympathizers in the "house" and they died hard. Stallings and his crowd made a lot of noise up to the end, but they never had a chance to side-step defeat.

Smith led off in the fifth inning with a single and Paskville followed suit. On a bobble by Stroud the two runners moved up. Gowdy sent out a long, high spiral and Smith tallied, while Maranville came in on Hughes' single.

MEREDITH HANGS UP NEW RECORD

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 7.—James E. Meredith of the University of Pennsylvania won the quarter-mile and half-mile runs at the annual Middle Atlantic A. A. U. track and field championships. After winning the half in 1:53 2-5, he established a new record in the quarter, which he ran in 50 2-5.

WILLARD PICKS 3 BEST HEAVIES IN THE RING

(This is the first of a new series of articles written by Jess Willard, heavyweight champion of the world, which will appear exclusively in this city in the AMERICAN. In this series Willard will discuss the present day ring fighters in an impartial way. There are several among them who have challenged him. In the next article Willard will tell what he thinks of the forthcoming McFarland-Gibbons fight.)

By JESS WILLARD.
(Heavyweight Champion of the World.)

Copyright, 1916, by A. H. Me-rrill. All rights reserved.

Before I whipped Jack Johnson for the heavyweight championship of the world, I declared that, if I won the title, I would fight any white man in the world. And I will. I am ready right now to sign up with any man the promoters are willing to get for me.

Just let some promoter make me a good offer and I'll jump at the chance to get back in the ring so fast that it will take his breath away. Any challenged ever since I knocked out Johnson. Why, even bantamweights have issued challenges. But most of these were press schemes.

PICKS LIKELY HEAVYWEIGHTS.

Right now it looks to me as though Jim Coffey, Frank Moran and Charley Weinert were the best of the heavyweight crop. Let them fight it out among themselves and I'll tackle the winner. Still, I am ready to fight them all, one week apart, if a promoter comes through with a strong enough offer to make it worth my while to give up the show business.

By the way, this acting stuff doesn't appeal to me. I don't like it. It is much harder for me to be an actor than to fight the toughest men in the game. My contracts with the show people expires in about six weeks. Then I want to go home to Los Angeles, rest up for a couple of weeks and enjoy myself with the kiddies. Then bring on your heavyweights.

A fighter's place is in the ring, and I want to get back at my trade. I am going to fight only five more years—I hope to earn enough money in that time to be so well fixed financially that I can retire and go into another business.

CONFIDENT OF VICTORY.

I am confident that I can easily dispose of all the heavyweights of today.

Al Reich looked awfully good when he first started. They tell me he hits straight and hard and is really the classiest one of the bunch. But they tell me he doesn't seem to get ahead very fast. That is the case in the game when it gets too rough.

It looks that way, too. He let Porky Flynn, a trial horse at the best, outpoint him. Then he took on Coffey and was knocked out. He had Coffey going around the ring from a one-two punch and was afraid to go in and finish him. Then Jim got his bearings back and stopped Reich.

Then Jim Savage outpointed Reich. Well, if Savage can do that, Reich must be sadly lacking somewhere. Savage was one of my sparring partners when I was training for the fight with Johnson. Now I'm going to tell you something about him.

SAVAGE LACKS PUNCH.

He is a wonderfully clever two-handed boxer. But I don't believe he is the gamest man in the world by any means. And he never hit me one good punch all the time we were training in Havana. A prominent New York sporting writer came down to Cuba to "cover" the championship battle. He had seen Savage fight many times.

"Savage is one of the best boxers I ever saw," he told me the night he arrived on the boat from Tampa. "I think he can outbox any man in the world in ten rounds."

So I invited the expert out to my camp the next morning. I asked Savage to work with me after I had slugged six hard rounds with Jack Hemple. Jim and I boxed three rounds. He didn't hit me anywhere except on the arms. In the third round I jabbed him with a straight left to the nose and he yelled that he had wrenched his shoulder.

For two days he wouldn't put on the gloves with me again. And I hadn't hurt him in the least. On the other hand Hemple was all cut up, bruised and sore, still he never asked me to "quit" on punches and was always ready to take me on whenever I asked him to.

GUNBOAT DECISION ERROR.

"Well, the way I showed Savage up caused the newspaperman, who had always thought Johnson would win in a walk, to wire a two-column story to his paper that I would surely give Johnson a great fight, with an equal chance of winning if the scrap went twenty rounds or so.

So I know that I can beat Savage. I really think I could stop him in most any round I desired.

Gunboat Smith was given a decision over me out on the Coast a couple of years ago. He was at his best then, still I think the referee made a horrible mistake when he gave Jim Buckley's man the award. Since then Smith has gone back fast. He didn't hit Weinert a single blow when they met a few weeks ago in Brooklyn.

Then the "Gunboat" took on Jim Cowler, the fighter that Jim Corbett brought back with him from Australia. Cowler, I have been told, doesn't know a thing about fighting. Yet Smith just did make him in a slow and uninteresting bout.

Next time out, Smith took on my old sparring partner, Hemple, and again put up a rotten fight. So I don't see where Smith figure in the running now.

SAINTS COFFEY MATCH.

As for Coffey, he was going along immense until he ran into Fireman Jim Flynn down at Tampa. Then he "blew up" and was stopped in the ninth round because Flynn's seconds thought he had injured his hand. Jim told me since, and that he could have easily finished out the remaining round, and that Coffey was going to be tired as soon.

Throw out this one bad fight of Coffey's and he still figures on a par of the bunch, with the possible exception of Weinert. I would like nothing better than to fight Coffey first of the bunch. They tell me he is a wonderful drawing card in New York. Well, I'm in the boxing game for the money there is in it. So, naturally give me the biggest drawing card.

Now as for Weinert. He is only nineteen years old, and I understand he is a marvelous boxer, but sadly lacks in good punch. He may get the wallop as he develops. I have been told by men who know the fight game that if the Jersey lad is brought along slowly and carefully, within the next year or eighteen months he will be a championship possibility. I hope that he isn't rushed too fast. But I will fight him, as well as any other man, if he insists and can get a promoter to give me my price.

I am ready. It's up to some promoter to make me a worthy offer and I'll hop into the ring.

PLUTO WATER AMERICA'S PHYSIC

Why Does a Has-Been Want to Come Back?

Why does a "has-been" always want to come back into the prize ring every time he hears the clink of a dollar?

It is a mystery to Jess Willard, the world's heavyweight champion, who discussed it in the next article of his new series in the American.

Battling Nelson made the big fellow think of it when the Dane went into the ring last night to meet a lad half his age. Willard thinks it was simply the call of the dollar which tempted "Nat."

COAST PLAYERS WILL COMBAT FOR TITLE

By MISS MOLLA BJURSTEDT.
World's Foremost Woman Tennis Player.

FOREST HILLS, L. I., Sept. 7.—The National tennis championship will go to the Pacific Coast this year.

William M. Johnston, playing remarkable tennis, defeated the champion, R. Norris Williams of Philadelphia and Boston, in the All-Comers on the West Side Courts, and today will play for the title with his fellow Californian, Maurice F. McLoughlin.

It was a wonderful battle between the two young men, Johnston and Williams, as good tennis as could be seen. Johnston won because he continued the unbeatable game he has played throughout the tournament.

There was nothing in the way of a fluke about it. It said on Sunday that Johnston would win if he played as he has been playing.

The set scores were 5-7, 6-4, 6-2, 8-6, but they do not tell the story at all. Only sixteen points separated the two men. Through Johnston won by 16 points—Johnston, 169, Williams, 153. That gives a better idea of how the match ran.

JOHNSTON GETS GOING.

At the start of the match Johnston did not know how well he could play. He went into a losing fight and turned it into a winning fight by nerve and determination.

Williams was confident and Johnston had little confidence. It was in the fourth set he found that he could win and then he played as few men have ever played.

Both men displayed rare tennis. It was not one of those slashing, smashing games, in which speed counts only to speed. Neither man could hit the ball hard enough to bother the other. Youth had a few service aces and both played admirably, but they were each far too clever to be bothered merely by service.

The points came entirely because of the steadiness of the finish, or a clever mission. There were no errors of omission. And that makes Johnston's victory all the more noteworthy.

M'LOUGHLIN'S CLEAN SWEEP.

The Williams-Johnston match overshadowed the McLoughlin-Pell match, which McLoughlin went accurately. McLoughlin winning in straight sets, 6-2, 6-0, 7-5.

McLoughlin's tennis is still an enigma. He did not play the game of either Williams or Johnston, but there was not forced to. He was good within himself at every point.

Johnston will meet McLoughlin today. Johnston does not believe he can beat the ex-champion. He did not show his true tennis against Williams until he mentally discovered that he might win. I hardly think that he will make that discovery today, however.

Harvard Rowing Leader to Stay Off the Gridiron

Captain David P. Morgan of the Harvard crew has decided to abandon his pursuit of a spot in the Crimson football limelight. Instead he will devote his spare moments to matters appertaining to developing an eight to tear away the laurel wreath which now adorns the brow of Guy Nickalls, Yale's coach and a two-time winner over the Harvard oars.

Morgan would be pressed if Tackle Parson would forsake football for the more peaceful occupation of handling a 10-oar stick. Last Fall Harry Murray, the crew captain, advised prospective rowing men that they need not expect consideration if they were football candidates, and Captain Brickley had a rather heated controversy with him as a result.

Soucy received an injury in football last Fall which forced him out of varsity rowing competition all season. His failure to advance from the second boat was one of the season's worries, so Wray had all along claimed the Jamaica Plain youngster was the strongest oar he had the previous season.

Old Bat Nelson Is Done Up by Waugh

JUAREZ, Mex., Sept. 7. — Bobby Waugh of Dallas was awarded the decision over Battling Nelson, former lightweight champion, at the end of a twenty-round bout. The fight was fast throughout.

Nelson showed all his old ability to take punishment, but lacked both steam and cleverness.

SIDELIGHTS ON SPORTS

By RIGHT FIELD.

THE fun in the National League seems to keep right on. The Robins, whom the Braves made look badly in the last game at Allston, got together and upset the Phillies twice, while the Braves, who left home looking like $1,000,000, fell twice before McGraw's long suffering aggregation. This was twice as many games as the Braves lost to the Giants last Labor Day, as the those who saw the two bitter battles in Boston town will recall.

LAST year, when the Giants had something to fight for, they broke even with the Stallings tribe on the family. Now, when McGraw's chief aim is to beat out "Buck" Herzog's crew, he gets the Champions down twice. Two victories for the Braves while the Phillies are losing twice would have made fine reading.

GROVER CLEVELAND ALEXander, mainstay of the Phillies' pitching corps, appears in the latest set of averages as having won 27 out of 39 games, with twenty-five wins and eight losses credited to him. This is a .714 pace.

MAYER has worked thirty-six times for seventeen wins and thirteen losses, while Rixey, Demaree and Eppa Rixey have worked twenty-six times each, with each winning ten and losing ten. McQuillan, since he was picked up from the Pirates, has done a little work, while Chalmers has been in twenty-one games for four wins and seven losses. Naturally, if Alexander totters under the burden, some body will have to toss a rope to Pat Moran's crew.

CACTUS CRAVATH has earned his salary by crossing the plate seventy-three times, according to the latest compiled returns, while Bancroft, the clever young shortstop in the Moran employ, has worked around the circuit forty-four times. The Phillies fail to show up in the athletics of leading base stealers, but Luderus, batting .325 in 105 games, is only two points behind Captain Larry Doyle of the Giants for top honors in his league.

IN looking over the accomplishments of Alexander, we find that he has beaten the Braves five times and has bowed to them but once. He will get other chances at Byers & Co. ere long. Grover Cleveland, during 308 innings, gave two hits every three innings, fanned 210 and walked but fifty-one.

MANAGER PAT MORAN gets a trifle indignant when folks come along saying that Alexander is the Phillies' mainstay. He insists that his men have a team spirit that is putting over the goods in a number of tight games. Moran is optimistic. He hopes to have everything settled before Moran's Day at Allston, September 29.

STILL, he can't afford to drop two in a row very often, for the Braves are out on the road trying to battle into the lead and the Robins have come back at a time when it looked as though they were about to fall away.

MORAN, who has done better with the Phillies so far than anyone else, is inclined to give the manager portion of the credit to the players themselves.

Squabbling Over the Weight.

NEW YORK, Sept 7.—One pound of flesh is holding up the Johnny Dundee-Griffiths match scheduled for the Garden, September 18. The best Griffiths will do is 134 pounds at 3 o'clock, and Dundee is holding out for 133. Griffiths came East with "Tackle" McFarland and is working out with the Chicago boiler for his fight with Mike Gibbons Saturday night.

Band of 125 to Make Bow Sunday at Braves Field

Under the auspices of the Massachusetts Women's Suffrage Association, a mammoth band concert is to be given at Braves Field next Sunday. The concert is unique in that the band will number 125 men, or more than twice as many musicians as have ever before appeared at an outdoor concert in Boston.

Barrington Sargent, leader of the Ninth Regiment Band and well known not only in this city but throughout the country, will direct the band. He has made up an elaborate program that will require nearly two hours in its rendition. The concert is to be given at extremely popular prices, this being made possible through the enormous seating capacity of upwards of 24,000.

The huge bandstand is now in course of construction, while of the portable variety, will follow in style the general architecture of the rest of the ball park. It will be located midway between the pitcher's box and home plate and will have a large sounding board, or shell, intended to drive the volume of music directly into the grandstand.

Donald Pope Cleans Up.

Donald Jope of Boston won the 50-mile professional motor cycle race at Revere Beach in 1 hr. 4 min. 49 2-5 sec. and 23½ seconds, a record for the course. Pope also paced the five-mile professional event to his credit; took second place in the 25-mile event and finished first in the ten-mile race.

Labor Day Scraps

SCRANTON, Pa., Sept. 7.—"Battling" Levinsky had all the better of Jack Dillon in a ten-round bout. Levinsky punished Keating all over the ring, but could not put him down. Levinsky knocked out Soldier Young in the third round.

CEDAR POINT, O., Sept. 7.—Johnny Kilbane, the featherweight champion, outpointed Abbie Miller of Lorain, O., in a ten-round bout.

CANTON, O., Sept. 7.—Jack Britton of Chicago and Jack Dillon of Indianapolis fought a ten-round no decision bout here.

NEW BEDFORD, Sept. 7.—Al Shubert of New Bedford stopped Young Kelly of New York (lightweight, 8b. at) and the latter of (a) in (through-out) and 5. Limbo on the verge of a knockout in the fourteenth and fifteenth rounds.

LOWELL, Mass., Sept. 7.—Joe Mahan of Manchester and Young Doyle of Lowell put up a rattling ten-round draw at the ballpark in Centralville Sold day here.

GLOUCESTER, Sept. 7.—Harry Carlson of Brockton won a decision over Young Britt in fifteen rounds at Stage Fort Park. Battling Peters of Gloucester and Battling Carroll of Lawrence fought a six-round draw, while Jack Williams of Gloucester and Young Corbet of Gloucester fought a four-round draw.

McVEA AND WILLS SQUARE OFF AT ATLAS A. A.

ATLAS A. A. CARD.

Sam McVea, Los Angeles, vs. Harry Wills, New Orleans 12 rounds.

Charley Byers, South End, vs. Terry Brooks, West End; 8 rounds.

"Duke" Fuller, Cambridge, vs. Al Terry, Cambridge; 6 rounds.

Sammy Stone vs. Young Fitzsimmons; 6 rounds.

HARRY WILLS, the massive negro boxer from New Orleans, has a world of admirers among the best-posted of the resident ring "fans"; has already had two stiff setbos with Sam McVea, the big California brunette, whom he meets in the main mate at the Atlas A. A. tonight, and the opinions of some shrewd judges will go badly wrong if the member from the Crescent City doesn't give a good account of himself.

Wills is confidence itself. Scaling practically as heavy as McVea—each dusky miller will come in well over the 200-pound mark—Harry is claiming a decisive win for himself. He has the reach on Sam and that's what he looked to get him the verdict, he declares.

New Orleans and New York were the scenes of the other two Wills-McVea skirmishes. The former bout went twenty rounds and the latter lasted ten, and Wills has clippings to show he was right there with McVea at the windup of each encounter.

BE that as it may, McVea has already shown himself a ring crowd that he is as good as they come in the heavyweight class, and Sam has a sneaking impression that this is the time he's going to fetch Colonel Wills.

Inside of the past six weeks McVea has won a twelve-round decision over Sam Langford, having clearly the best of the Tar-baby at every stage of their scrap, and also stopped "Sandy" Ferguson.

In both bouts McVea loomed up as the best big man in the business; in fact, with Jack Johnson out of it, Jess Willard, in all likelihood, is the only big fellow who can really be placed ahead of the hulky Sam, and were the champion to sign for a scrap with McVea there's a lot of educated Bostonians that would be put up on the negro.

MCVEA has made good here, which accounts for the Atlas A. A. management giving him a return bout. He's meeting a good one, if a stranger to local ring "fans," in Wills, and there's every thing to indicate that the stage is set for one of the sauciest scraps of the season.

The semi-windup brings together Charley Byers and Terry Brooks. The rival welterweights are slugging with a large-sized S, and their fuss bids fair being jammed full of action. "Duke" Fuller and Al Terry, who are to have it out for the colored championship of Cambridge, are another pair of hitters who generally deliver.

The curtain-raiser brings together Sammy Stone and Young Fitzsimmons, two active youths, who almost always exhibit plenty of action and a loud scrap.

Hughie Happy Over Clean-Up of Yanks

CHICAGO, Sept. 7.—"That was a mighty nice day's work my pal Fill Donovan did for us down in Boston yesterday. Those two Red Sox defeats just about mean the flag for the Tigers," so stated Hughie Jennings, the Detroit skipper, upon his arrival here with his club this morning.

The Tigers and White Sox are to have it out on the South Side today and tomorrow in the final combats of the season. The season's battling stands 15 to 8 in favor of the Tigers.

Abe Switches Foes and Registers K. O.

GLOVERSVILLE, N. Y., Sept. 7.—The scheduled bout between Abe Attell and Tommy Houck was called off, Attell refusing to go on with a heavier man. At the last moment Frankie Callahan was induced to go on in Houck's place. Callahan proved no match for the ex-Champion, and was counted out in the third round.

Young Brown defeated Jack Goldie in six rounds, Goldie's seconds throwing up the sponge. "Mickey" Dunlap had a shade on Tommy Houck in ten rounds.

SOUND BODIES

By JULIAN HAWTHORNE

This is the forty-second of a series of articles on "Sound Bodies" written exclusively for the Boston AMERICAN by Julian Hawthorne. These articles will be continued in the AMERICAN on Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays.

This enumeration of special movements has doubtless gone far enough. They constitute the threshold rather than the great hall of Exercise itself; which, as I have said before, is not a hall bedroom, nor even a Hemenway Gymnasium, but all Out-Doors. But they are a threshold which it is well to pause at, before going further. For when you get outdoors you are prone to take up some particular thing for which you have a personal predilection; and, though it will benefit you, it will not be of so good effect as if you had previously taken some pains to get a symmetrical development.

When all the muscles of your body have had equal training, so that no part of you need fear attention more than another part, you will not only get better results from any larger form of bodily diversion which you may select, but you will be able to do it better. You will be a better swimmer, runner, leaper, fencer, baseball player, walker or anything for being reasonably proficient in these preliminaries than if you were to go in for the big things first.

There are few or none of the big things which can be perfectly performed without the co-operation, more or less pronounced, of nearly every muscle of the body; but, unless you know all these muscles, and are used to calling upon them, you are very likely to avoid them in making your larger efforts, with the consequence that your performance will be less satisfactory, and that the muscles indispensable to its performance will have a strain put upon them which will tend to make you unsymmetrical — almost all our athletes are; and to that extent neither so strong nor so healthy as you ought to be.

If you are unsymmetrical to begin with—and that is generally the case with unpracticed people —you will, of course, in doing the foregoing exercises, give more attention to the weak parts than to the others, so as to bring up all to a common level of efficiency. Give a third more practice to the left side than to the right, or vice versa, or give it twice as much, if necessary. If your legs are feeble multiply the training given to them in comparison with that of the body and arms; if the chest be hollow and weak let the main stress fall there, and so on.

Do not be content until you are good (in your degree) all over; and then take care to let no part of your frame—no special muscle or group of muscles—get ahead of the rest. In this way you may safely develop yourself to the limit of your individual muscular capacity; and be careful not to let the mania for athletic competitions tempt you to go beyond that.

The safe limit for muscular development is not the same in any two persons; you differ from all others in that respect, just as you differ from others in the cast of your features. There are many persons who bear a strong facial resemblance to you, and there are many who are very nearly like you in muscular power; when you compete, let it be with them, and, if you would be wise, avoid giving or taking handicaps, which may amuse the onlookers, but are useless and often dangerous for handicappers and handicapped. Always start from scratch, if you start at all; do your best, but don't try to do better; instead, get greater proficiency by careful and gradual practice, and then try again.

Thousands of boy athletes, who might have become strong men, are spoiled almost at the start by what is called ambition, but which is generally rash vanity or mistaken zeal on the part of their backers. Know yourself, as the Ancients said, and don't go beyond that knowledge; save your preternatural effort for when it is needed—to save your life or somebody else's; but don't risk your future health and usefulness for so paltry a thing as a race for a brace of covered cup, or a wrestling match for a tin medal. You may have a thousand competitions, if you care for them; but you have only one life, and athletics are designed to make it better worth living, not to cripple it before it is well begun.

Half an hour of free exercises in the morning, and ten or fifteen minutes before you go to bed, will help you over many hard places and give you enjoyment by the way. Then go outdoors, as opportunity offers, and do as the spirit prompts. But, to quote the ancients once more, "Nil nimium!" and if you don't know what that means, find out and never forget it.

WILEY CAPTURES PACED RACE AT BEACH

Revere Cycle Track was completely packed last night and the immense throng saw one of the best cards of racing of the season. George Wiley hopped into the spotlight and placed first money in the fifty-mile motor-paced event to his credit. Georges Seres of France was second, while Victor Linart, the Belgian, who has been cleaning up, had to be content with third money.

With Wiley, Seres furnished the real riding of the night. Although Wiley tucked away four laps on him before the grind was over, the little Frenchman fought hard each time Wiley tried to pass him, and but for his generalship he would have passed many more times.

At the start "Bobby" Walthour took the lead and went nicely for five miles until Wiley got going. Wiley had a little tussle in passing Walthour, but after that Walthour was no aspirant for honors. The summary:

Five-mile car professional—Won by T. Sullivan, New Haven; Logan, South Boston, second; W. Fuller, Providence, third; Bobby Walthour, fourth. Time—10:49 3-5.

Fifty-mile motor-paced race—Won by George Wiley, New York; Georges Seres, New Haven, second; Victor Linart, Belgium, third; Bobby Walthour, Atlanta, fourth; Albert Corbeil, Lynn, fifth. Time—59:11 3-5.

Half-mile amateur handicap—Won by J. Fardis, Orienta Heights, 40 yards; H. Jones, Revere, 65 yards, second; Elmer Bunker, Brighton, 115 yards, third.

Half-mile invitation, amateur—Won by Mike Barrett, Brighton; Frank Keenan, Revere, second. Time—1m. 16 4-5sec.

Half-mile professional handicap—Won by T. Connolly, Tourist, 60 yards; R. Williams, New York, 75 yards, second; J. Collins, New Haven, 25 yards, third; J. Cutler, Wakefield, 80 yards, fourth. Time—1m. 13 1-5sec.

Mile-and-out race, amateur—Won by Ned Champagne, Revere; Frank Cahill, Lynn, second; L. Wetmore, Providence, third; J. Barry, Cambridge, fourth. Time—2m. 43 1-5sec.

Peckinpaugh Is a Cripple.

Roger Peckinpaugh, the Yankees' brilliant shortstop, is hors du combat this trip to Boston. He is laid up with an injured thumb on his throwing hand and doesn't know how soon he will be able to get back in the game. He was on the coaching lines in both games yesterday.

Camel

Camels are sold everywhere in scientifically sealed packages, 20 for 10c; or ten packages (200 cigarettes) in a glassine-covered carton for $1.00. We strongly recommend this carton for the home or office supply or when you travel.

You Cigarette Smokers

will pick this Camel blend of choice Turkish and choice Domestic tobaccos against either kind of tobacco smoked straight. Camels will meet your heartiest approval any way you compare them with any cigarette at any price! Put them to the severest test, then you'll appreciate the superior flavor, and absence of bite, of parch and of any unpleasant cigaretty after-taste.

Prove to yourself that this blend makes the best cigarette you ever smoked! Best in taste, in aroma, in mellow-mildness! Yet Camels have all the "body" required to assure satisfaction. The cost of the tobaccos blended in Camels prohibits the use of premiums. Buy Camels 20 for 10c or by the carton of 10 packages (200 cigarettes) for $1.00. It's the ideal supply for home, for the office, for the trip. Camels are on sale everywhere.

The stamp placed over and seals the package, which keeps out air, thereby preserving the quality of the blended tobaccos. By inserting the fingers as illustrated, the stamp easily breaks without tearing the tin foil, which folds back into its place.

BRITISH REPORT READY ON U. S. IMPORTS

WASHINGTON, Sept. 7.—Details of just what concessions England will make to American importers are being prepared by the British Foreign Office and will be submitted to Ambassador Page today or tomorrow. The British embassy has been notified that the entire question of shipping permits, which has caused a serious interruption to the unofficial negotiations here, will be disposed of by this decision.

The administration is waiting until this is cleared up before sending the new protest to Great Britain. It is said that Great Britain has about decided that all German manufactured goods that were paid for or contracted for prior to April 1 last will be permitted to come in without further cut molestation by British warships.

Among the goods that will be "expedited," it is expected, are the two cargoes of dyestuffs which Germany refused to permit to leave unless the war was assured that cargoes of cotton would be sent in return.

TODAY'S STOCK MARKET

By W. H. ROSS, Financial Editor

Stocks opened from a fraction to a point or more lower, U. S. Steel being off 1¾ at the start. The whole list ranged lower, but the losses were pretty evenly divided as to leading railroads and war order issues. Coppers were quiet. Within fifteen minutes there was a rally, U. S. Steel recovering its earlier loss and a number of others being higher than at the start. Trading was fairly active during that period. There was considerable selling pressure at the beginning and the way the New York market absorbed offerings was evidence there was a good demand at a level lower than closing prices last week.

Many traders had expected that the resumption of submarine attacks upon British liners by German submarines would cause a bad break in stocks on opening after the holiday. But the Hesperian incident did not revive fear of international complication to the extent expected. It was a universally discussed episode, however. Another gold trip to Canada of $45,000,000 is expected to reach New York this afternoon. The gold was landed at Halifax from the British cruiser Argyle. Within a month, including this shipment, more than $84,000,000 in gold has been received in New York from Great Britain, and it is believed should steady sterling exchange. Envoys from London to arrange for a British loan in this country are expected to arrive any day. They movements have been kept secret.

LIST BECAME IRREGULAR.

At the end of the first fifteen minutes the New York market was irregular.

Among gains were American Can ½, Car & Foundry ½, Baldwin ⅝, Colorado Fuel ⅝, Goodrich ⅝, Westinghouse ¼, Union Pacific 1, Reading ¼, Canadian Pacific ½, Chesapeake & Ohio ¼ and Ohio ⅛.

Declines included Anaconda ⅜, Utah ⅝, Inspiration ½, U. S. Steel ⅜, Best Sugar ¼, American Locomotive ¾, Bethlehem 2 Crucible ¼, Pressed Steel ¼, Republic Iron & Steel, Studebaker ½, St. Paul ¾, Pennsylvania ⅝, New Haven ¼, N. Y. Central ¼ and Southern & Ohio ¼.

LITTLE TRADING HERE.

Trading in the Boston market was on a small scale. At the opening there was indecision and a downturn of a point or so, but soon became irregular. Butte & Superior recovered an earlier loss and American Zinc afterward, but declined. It had opened. Among later declines were Copper Range 1, Granby ¼ and Alaska Gold ⅛. Atlantic Gulf preferred, which was about as active as any issue, was off ¼. Only gain noted was up ⅛. Among other gains were United Fruit ½ and U. S. Smelting ⅛. Nothing new was said about the metals market situation this morning. In London spot copper and futures were up 2s. Lead was quiet and Spelter was unchanged.

Aviator Promises to Land Feet Up

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 7. — Here's the latest wrinkle in trick aviation—landing upside down in a monoplane.

The promised stunt is the next invention of George H. Williams, former German war aviator, who is building a trick tube in San Francisco. Williams expects to be ready to make exhibition flights next week.

OUR FIRST DUTY IS TO MAINTAIN PEACE; OUR NEXT DUTY IS TO PREPARE FOR WAR

Why This Newspaper Prints Best War News and Prints It First

SINCE the beginning of the European war the Boston AMERICAN has printed the most graphic and complete stories of the events in Europe and printed them FIRST.

It announced the sinking of the British dreadnought Audacious twenty-four hours before any other American newspaper.

It told of the capture of Ostend and Antwerp, of the fall of Namur, the removal of the French capital from Paris to Bordeaux, of the order for the civil population to evacuate Warsaw, before any of its contemporaries.

It printed earlier, more detailed, and more vivid accounts of the sinking of the Lusitania, of the fall of Przemysl, of the destruction of the Royal Edward and of the sinking of the Arabic than any competitor.

The AMERICAN was able to do these things because its news is supplied by the INTERNATIONAL NEWS SERVICE, the most energetic, enterprising and effective organization of its kind in the world.

The gathering of the news of the greatest war of all time is possible only to a service which has preparedness for its cardinal principle.

At the outbreak of hostilities the INTERNATIONAL NEWS SERVICE was ready. It had a great force of able correspondents in the field. It has strengthened this staff as the war proceeded, until now it is unquestionably the best in Europe.

The foremost correspondents of the belligerent countries are in its employ. The greatest of European newspapers are its partners in the collection of news.

Its Paris correspondent is C. F. BERTELLI, a man of wide acquaintance in Government circles and high standing with the army. As military expert, we have HILAIRE BELLOC, the most distinguished military critic and the friend of General Joffre. FREDERICK PALMER, the only American correspondent who has the freedom of the French lines in Flanders, sends all his dispatches to the International News Service.

In Germany the late JAMES CREELMAN has been succeeded by Gustav Schweppendick, editor of Das Morgen Journal, who is in a position to get immediate and authoritative information of all events on the German battle lines, as well as at the German capital. Major ERNST MORAHT, the Berlin Tageblatt's great military critic, also writes for the International News Service from Berlin.

From the Italian-Austrian front GABRIELE D'ANNUNZIO, poet, playwright and daring soldier, chronicles events as he sees them for the American readers of the International News Service. GUGLIELMO FERRERO, the famous historian, supplies correspondence from the field, and Camillo Cianfarra, formerly of the Italian Herald in New York, is in charge of news distribution from Rome.

STANLEY WASHBURN, who distinguished himself in the Russo-Japanese war, is the International News Service correspondent in Petrograd. Colonel Ashmead-Bartlett, England's leading military critic, is its expert observer at the Dardanelles. Dr. E. J. DILLON, greatest authority on the Balkans, keeps the International News Service informed of the important developments in that pivotal region.

The correspondents of the International News Service, numbering more than eighty, and covering every centre of activity in Europe, are able, not only to give the vivid descriptions of great battles that only eye-witnesses can write, but to report FIRST the results of every incident of arms or of diplomacy that is of importance in this continent-wide war.

To make assurance doubly sure, to leave no possible news source unguarded, the International News Service has arranged with the London Times and the London Daily Telegraph to secure all their war dispatches; and has made a like arrangement with the Lokal-Anzeiger in Berlin, and the famous Matin in Paris.

With such a force in the field, and with the best possible arrangements for the rapid transmission of its dispatches, the International News Service effectively controls the news situation in Europe.

Alert watchfulness in all capitals, good team work everywhere, energy, enterprise and enthusiasm, combine to give the public accurate information at the time when it is most valuable—which is the earliest possible moment that the news can be laid before the reader.

For the readers of the AMERICAN, nearly a hundred of the pick of the war correspondents are constantly at work. No more complete machinery for obtaining not only the earliest but the most graphic and THE MOST ACCURATE war news has ever been organized. What the International News Service has done in the past, it may be depended upon to do in the future. Its staff is constantly augmented and strengthened. As the centers of hostilities shift, new points are covered, new organization effected.

It is a great and a tremendously difficult task. It requires extraordinary expenditures, endless patience and indefatigable persistence.

But the results have been well worth the effort. Today in America the man who really knows what has happened since the war began, how it happened, and why it happened, whether at Liege, Verdun, the Dardanelles, off the coast of Kinsale or on the road to Trieste, is the man who has read the dispatches of the International News Service.

THE SECOND LINE OF DEFENSE

Supposing some of the ships of an enemy slipped past our fleet and bore down on our coast. How far do you think they would come when they beheld a line of grim periscopes, revealing the presence of vessels that could tunnel the sea at fifteen miles an hour and blow every invading vessel out of existence?

Why Do Mothers Want to Marry Off Daughters?

By Dorothy Dix

WHY are mothers so eager to get their daughters married and so opposed to their sons marrying?

There is never any difficulty at a wedding in telling which is the bride's mother and which the bridegroom's. The bride's mother is the lady who is beaming with joy and complacency, while the bridegroom's mother is the forlorn-looking creature who is dissolved in tears.

Of course, the obvious and brutal answer to this question which first arises in the mind is that the girl's mother wants her daughter to get married in order to get rid of her and in order to shift the burden of her support from the family pocketbook to a husband's. Undoubtedly marriage is still viewed by the majority of parents as a profession which their daughters are expected to follow, and they look upon Sallie putting on her wedding veil just as they do upon John hanging out his sign as a lawyer or a doctor. They've educated her and dressed her and helped her settle herself in life, and she's off their hands at last, thank Heaven, so it's an occasion for general rejoicing.

Also so bound by traditions and ancient superstitions are the most of us that there still lingers in the mind of many women the old idea that there is a sort of disgrace in a woman not getting married, a sign that she had been passed over and found less attractive than other girls, and that in some sort of a way this reflects upon her mother.

Psychology of Mothers

Potent though these two reasons may be, they still do not adequately explain the strange twist of feminine psychology that makes practically every mother anxious for her daughters to marry—often so anxious that she does not even take the trouble to look the gift bridegroom in the mouth and see what sort of a man he is.

This desire to have their daughters married off is all the more strange because the great majority of mothers have not found happiness in their own marriage, and there has been nothing in their own matrimonial experience to make them desire to have their daughters duplicate it.

To the most of them marriage has brought sickness and suffering, and struggle and work unrewarded by any appreciation. They have seen romance die with the honeymoon. They have had the lover they married turn into the neglectful husband or the domestic tyrant. They have been through the agony of bearing children and the endless toil and the martyrdom of self-sacrifice that the woman endures who raises a family on small means. They have worked longer hours than any other slave in the world without getting even a "thank you" from the husband and children for whom they have toiled.

Even the woman who marries a good man and a kind one finds matrimony a hard road to travel. The one who marries the other kind of man finds marriage an earthly purgatory, and, this being the case, you would think that a mother's heart would be torn in twain with anguish when she saw her daughter taking the hazardous risk of marriage and that she would hold her back from it if she could.

Strange Phenomenon

On the contrary, mother urges her daughter on. Even the woman whose own heart has been broken by her husband, even the woman who has been united to a drunken beast that she has to drag out of the gutter, even the woman who has married a lazy loafer she has had to support, even the woman who has been cursed and abused and beaten, is glad to see her daughter marry.

Who can explain such a strange phenomenon? It is because hope springs eternal in the human heart and every mother believes that her daughter must be more fortunate than she was? It is because women are gamblers at heart and every mother is a "dead game sport" who is willing to risk her daughter's all on the hundred-to-one shot that she will get a matrimonial prize? Or it is that back of all reason and experience, it is their mission in the world to carry on the torch of life and that every woman devotes her daughter to that end when she brings her into the world a girl?

Whatever the reason, it is true that women are anxious for their daughters to marry and that they would rather see a girl marry even an indifferent man than to undertake a good job, although the job would have far more promise of happiness and security in it.

"My mother," said a successful business woman the other day, "bitterly opposed my accepting a position that pays me enough to live in luxury, but she was pleased to death when my sister married a man and went to California to live, although my sister's husband earns so little that they live in poverty. I am ten times as well off as my sister, and yet my mother expends her pity upon me because I am not married."

Cause of Unhappiness.

The anxiety of mothers to have their daughters married often makes a cruel situation for the girl. When she gets to be twenty-four or twenty-five years old the daughter in the average family is made to feel that she is decidedly "de trop." Mother begins audibly to wonder why she doesn't marry and to be bitter because her companions have married and she hasn't. The girl feels that her family are tired of supporting her, that they consider they have done their full duty by her and that she should relieve them of her care.

Then it is that if she is a girl of independent spirit she goes out and hunts up a job, and if she isn't she marries any kind of a crooked stick of a man who happens to present himself. One of the main reasons that there are so many unhappy marriages is because mothers are so anxious to marry off their daughters that they push them into unsuitable unions.

Inklings and Thinklings

Whole nation is behind the Czar.—Headline.
From the war reports we thought it was the other way around.

Life's mysteries: Civilized warfare.

See that a firm advertises a wrist watch with a "masculine face." Does it sport a mustache?

By the way, what's become of Montenegro?

From an exchange we learn that the Polish word for beetle is chxaszaszczas, and that it is "pronounced exactly as it is spelled."

So-called simplified spellers announce that 100 American publications now print the word "scool." Jiminy cristmas! If they's going to put "c" in the place of "ch" there'll be a corus of disapproval.

From a letter:
I can prove that thirty minutes' immersion in ten feet of salt water will not cure hay fever. It will not cure anything, unless those minutes be consecutive. Taken a minute at a time, say, one a day, they might turn a perfectly good hay fever into a delightful rose cold.—G. Scott-Dunkin.
Hay fever by the name of rose cold sounds a lot better, but we suppose the sufferer has to sniff, just the same.

Observer announces that mosquitoes will not bite a leg encased in yellow stockings. None of our business, of course, but we hope the girls are not so afraid of mosquitoes as to adopt such a remedy as this.

Harriet Ford Tells How a Girl May Succeed as a Dramatist

By Harriet Ford

III.—Selecting a Subject

DO you wish to write comedy, tragedy, melodrama or farce?

There will be no difficulty in classifying your subject. A melodramatic situation is easily recognized or one that is farcical. For instance, the element of improbability or exaggeration makes drama melodrama; the element of exaggeration or absurdity makes of comedy, farce.

We, in this country, are too full of vitality and optimism for tragedy to be popular in our theatres. We do like novelty. We refuse to listen to sermons on the stage. Our audiences wish to be amused or entertained.

Choose some dramatic crisis in a life or group of lives for your subject. Most dramas turn upon a struggle of some sort—a struggle between two dominant personalities, for instance. Sometimes we use the struggle against a fatality.

There is effective drama always in a situation where something threatens a person, or a group, unknown to them, but known to the observer.

Do not choose a subject that requires elaborate scenery and many scenes, unless you find something of sufficient novelty and interest surely to warrant such a setting. Period plays have only a limited public. The theatre usually reflects the present hour, and the successful dramatist has his finger always on the public's pulse. He keeps in touch with the trend of thought and sympathy and with all the big movements and ideas of the time.

Find a story that concerns a consistantly sympathetic hero and heroine. The simplest sort of theme sometimes develops into a play of wide appeal. "Peg o' My Heart" was an example of the Cinderella theme successfully placed in a new setting.

Our newspapers bare to us daily potential dramas in every path of life.

If you can find an unusual love story, write your play around it with confidence that there is a public eager for it.

Your heroes and heroines and your villains cannot be made up of good and evil, as every human being is in reality, except in comedy. That is to say, your audience will refuse to see any good in a dramatic villain, no matter how you draw him, and they prefer unalloyed virtue in heroes and heroines.

Try to find a subject of unusual interest instead of one of limited appeal.

If you decide on an historical incident round which to build your play, do not cast it in old forms; do not try to write like Shakespeare; do not use soliloquies because you are writing a drama in blank verse.

If you have a preachment, try to smuggle it across the footlights. If the audience suspects you of preaching, they won't forgive it.

The most successful comedy is unconscious comedy of line and situation; some seasonable, social complication that seems quite desperate to the persons in your play, and often natural and pleasing to the onlooker.

My advice to the young woman writing her first play is to take the most unusual dramatic incident that she ever heard of, or can imagine, and then develop it. My own experience was not quite that. I selected an actress whose methods were familiar to me, and who, I know, would have great difficulty in finding a play suited to her requirements as a star. It gave me an immediate market for my first product.

In her next article Miss Ford will tell about royalties and about placing a play.

In-Shoots

Sympathy seldom heals the wounds of the under dog.

When the heart is young the face seldom grows old rapidly.

There may be plenty of room at the top, but the rent is always steep.

Some wives can henpeck so sweetly that a fellow does not realise it.

Somehow the market always seems to be open for the other fellow's ideas.

If a man turns over his pay envelope regularly it is not necessary for him to call his wife "darling" all the time.
